WALTER SIMS BARELY MISSES MAJORITY IN RACE FOR MAYOR AND MUST RUN OVER WITH WOODWARD

Sims and Woodward Assail Election Methods

HUNDREDS DENIED RIGHT TO BALLOT IN CITY PRIMARY

Sims Declares This Confusion Cost Him Clear-Cut Victory in the First Election.

'TWELVE-TWENTY CLUB' BLAMED BY WOODWARD

Many of the Certificates Given Out by Tax Collector Refused — Haunson Makes Statement.

The city primary Wednesday was fraught with more confusion and chaos than any election held in Atlanta in many years, according to complaints of dissatisfaction made by hundreds of citizens in the various wards, who despite their claims of eligibility to vote, were refused ballots because their names did not appear on the registration lists.

The two leading candidates for mayor, Walter A. Sims and James G. Woodward, denounced the methods in which the election was handled—the former claiming this prevented him from being nominated on the first ballot, while Mr. Woodward attributed his lack of victory to the machinations of the so-called "Twelve-Twenty" clubs.

Approximately 300 persons, who appeared at the polls to vote and were told by election managers that they were not registered and consequently not entitled to a ballot, stormed the office of Tax Collector W. S. Richardson and voiced their protests. It is estimated that these 300 persons represented about one-tenth of the number of persons who were prevented from voting, according to candidates. The others, digusted, did not go to the tax collector's office, it was stated.

Certificates, showing that the person to whom they were issued had paid his taxes and was qualified to vote, were issued to about one-third of those who appeared at the tax collector's office, it was stated by Mr. Richardson, the others being shown where they were not registered for the 1922 election, Mr. Richardson stated.

After obtaining these certificates many of the persons to whom they were issued were turned down by the election managers, who claimed they were merely following instructions of John P. Haunson, chairman of the city democratic executive committee. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Haunson issued an emergency order, which he said was in direct violation of the rules and regulations governing the city election as stipulated in the official laws of the committee, instructing ward managers to accept the certificates issued by Tax Collector Richardson as valid evidence of their qualifications to vote.

Why He Issued Order.

"My reasons for issuing this emergency order," stated Mr. Haunson Wednesday night, "was that I firmly believe these people were entitled to vote and their names yere left off the official registration lists by error of the registrar.

"Section 1, paragraph 2, of the rules and regulations of the city democratic executive committee, which was drawn in 1912 and revised in the 1922 rules, stipulates that "no registration certificates shall be allowed on any primary day." Something had to be done in this emergency, however, and I took it upon myself to accept these certificates as legal qualifications of persons not on the official lists to vote in the primary. There were only about twenty of these certificates that finally reached the ballot box, however. My instructions were to pin the certificate to the ballot."

Tax Collector Richardson, who is also official registrar for the city, declared the reason for such confusion being experienced at the polls was due to many persons' names being added to the registration lists in the bond and charter elections who had not paid their 1922 taxes or registered since October 1, 1921, by a special ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson.

Mayson's Ruling.

"Mr. Mayson ruled that anyone who had paid his 1921 taxes and whose names appeared on the last year's registration books could vote in the bond and charter elections," declared Mr. Richardson. "Those elections were held by the city attorney as not being general elections and for that

The Country Club, Brookline, Mass., September 6.—Rudy Knepper, of Sioux City and Princeton, is a long burning star. Not for him a short session of blazing in the golfing sky and the oblivion. When Knepper gets himself worked up into a sizeable blaze he believes in staying alight.

On Tuesday he got himself fanned into a blaze in the beginning of the afternoon round when he started out for his second session against Torrance 5 down. He burned up his opponent and finished the day, 2 up. But he did not wink out during the night. Indeed, he did not. He showed up on the course Wednesday still a fiery star, and proceeded to make a light that caused Francis Ouimet, former titleholder, to fade from vision. The morning was fine and sunny, and when play for the first eighteen holes was through, Knepper and Ouimet were fifty-fifty for the day.

In the afternoon the customary Brookline cloudburst occurred. The torrential rain put out Ouimet's light, but Knepper kept right on burning. He waded and swam his way through to a victory that read 3 and 2 at the finish, whereupon he shook hands with Ouimet and hurried home to fan himself into a real hot fire for the proper roasting of Cyril Tolley, the lone remaining Englishman, when the two get together on Thursday.

Knepper is giving a most excellent

Strikers Also Being Represented in Negotiations in City Near Washington, Says Union Leader.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL,
United News Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

Washington, September 6.—William H. Johnston, president of the International Machinists association and one of the leaders of the striking shopmen, missing from his quarters here since Tuesday afternoon, has suddenly reappeared. In an exclusive interview with the United News Wednesday night, Johnston discussed the rumors which have placed Bert M. Jewell, leader of the shopmen's strike, in Chicago, Baltimore and Washington at the same time, and have started new talk of a rail strike peace following the lines set forth in United News Chicago dispatches.

The interview with Johnston revealed:

First—That the reported peace negotiations between Jewell and a group of conciliatory railway executives have a basis of truth, but that Jewell himself is somewhere near Chicago, and that in any pending negotiations the strikers are being represented by Jewell's deputies, in a city within a few hours of Washington.

Situation Delicate.

Second—That the present situation is of such a delicate nature as to be affected disastrously by undue publicity. "There is no intention on my part or on the party of any labor leader to hide," Johnston told the United News. "All of us simply feel the situation at the present moment is so complicated and full of possibilities that any public discussion of it would be ruinous to all efforts at peacemaking."

Third—That Johnston is again leav-

QUICK PEACE SEEN IN COAL MEETING

Speedy Ratification of Mine Pact Expected. Senate Delays Vote on Coal Measure.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., September 6.—All indications tonight point toward a speedy ratification of the peace pact between operators, miners of the anthracite region by the tri-district convention of hard coal mine workers which began its sessions here today.

More than 1,000 delegates, representing 400 local unions, were present when the convention opened. The majority were uninstructed, but John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers claimed that he had a majority that would overwhelm any settlement of the plans of the unions heads in the hard coal fields.

Mr. Lewis was optimistic, as also was Philip J. Murray, vice president of the union, who accompanied the president here from Philadelphia, where Saturday night, miners and operators' representatives agreed to a plan of settlement involving principal-

ANOTHER WOMAN NAMED ON SCHOOL BOARD OF ATLANTA

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson Defeats J. P. Wall in Eleventh Ward—Gaines Is Re-elected.

Complete returns in five of the seven contests for the board of education in Wednesday's primary showed early Thursday morning that M. Hoke Blair had been elected over Dr. Fred Morris in the first ward; W. W. Gaines, president of the board, was re-elected over his opponent, John F. Pate, in the third ward; H. J. Penn defeated T. H. Buckalew in the fifth ward; A. C. Meixell, now a member of the board, was re-elected over John S. Moore, in the ninth ward, and Mrs. Z. V. Peterson defeated J. P. Wall in the eleventh ward.

Other Contests.

Incomplete returns in the other contests showed the following to be the situation:

W. C. Slate was leading Mrs. J. E. Andrews with one precinct in the second ward reporting. The vote was, Slate, 165; Mrs. Andrews, 116. The precinct reporting was B.

W. D. Hall was leading Mrs. Kate Green Hess in the twelfth ward, with only precinct B reporting. The vote there was Hall, 139; Mrs. Hess, 79.

The board of education contests were among the last counted in the lengthy ballot, and returns, in these races were received slowly.

Elected By Wards.

This is the first time that the board of education has been elected by wards, the change being the result of the recent legislative approval of the charter amendments approved by the voters of Atlanta in the recent charter election.

The following were elected to the board in other wards, having no opposition:

Dr. R. M. Eubanks, fourth ward; Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, sixth ward; W. L. McCalley, seventh; John T. Hancock, eighth; Claude L. Trussell, tenth.

Mrs. Nelson and Mr. McCalley are members of the board under the present district system.

Voting in the completed races was as follows:

CLOSE CONTESTS FEATURE FIGHTS FOR CITY COUNCIL

William B. Hartsfield, J. L. Carpenter and Robert A. Gordon Apparent Winners for Aldermen.

With returns from Wednesday's primary complete except for a few missing precincts early Thursday morning, every indication pointed to the election of William B. Hartsfield as alderman from the third ward over Dr. R. E. Stone; J. L. Carpenter as alderman from the eleventh over J. C. Murphy, and Robert A. Gordon as alderman from the fourth over H. F. Garrett.

In the three cornered race for alderman in the seventh ward, J. E. McJenkin was eliminated, and Jesse W. Armistead and W. C. Davis will enter a second contest, neither having received a clear majority.

In the councilmanic races, Councilman J. Allen Couch won over his opponent, C. H. Price, in the fifth ward, and R. F. Pennington defeated Phillip W. Breitenbucher in the first ward, and C. D. Knight defeated Andy R. King in the ninth ward.

In the tenth ward, Sam N. Freeman led the field of three but failed to receive a majority. He will enter a runover race with W. Garland Cooper, who ran second. H. N. Alford was third in the race and was consequently eliminated.

Races for Council.

Incomplete returns from the other councilmanic races, which were the last contests counted and went far into the morning hours, showed the situation to be as follows:

Claude D. Rowe was leading J. A. Beall in the second ward: J. J. Greer was leading W. G. McNelley in the third ward; W. M. Rogers was leading A. R. Dyer in the seventh ward; Alfred F. Green was leading R. F. Gilliam in the twelfth ward in a two-term race, and W. E. Saunders had a lead over L. J. Cassels for the short-term twelfth ward race.

On the face of almost complete returns in the aldermanic and councilmanic races, the situation was as follows, with the ultimate outcome in doubt in several cases.

Byfield and His Wife Present Their Side Of Candler Incident

Mrs. Byfield Describes Siege by Reporters in New York After Their Return From Europe.

Coincident with the publication of an attack on their character by Mrs. Walter Candler, wired from California, Clyde K. Byfield and his wife yesterday broke the silence that has marked their conduct since their return to Atlanta from New York and their adventurous trip to Europe aboard the Berengaria. In an interview given The Constitution in which Byfield earnestly pleaded that the people of Atlanta suspend judgment on him until after the courts were permitted to hear a full and detailed account of the trip to Europe with Walter Candler, millionaire banker and horseman, the young automobile salesman declared that he had steeled himself to the embarrassments and the slights that he must encounter in the security of his confidence in his wife and the security of her confidence in him. And while he spoke Mrs. Byfield nodded her pretty head in acquiescence to everything her husband said.

Mrs. Byfield has recovered from the nervous breakdown she suffered following her return to Atlanta. She is quiet, retiring, extremely girlish, is almost tragically beautiful, and has a positive genius for making feminine clothes seem decorative. As her husband talked of their life since their return to Atlanta, she rarely put in a word, save when her husband described the beseiging of their hotel in New York by reporters after their return from Europe.

Besieged by Reporters.

"It was awful," exclaimed Mrs. Byfield reminiscently. "There were at least forty of them trying to see us every minute we were there.

Constantine's Forces Completely Demoralized Through Turk Victories, Say Reports.

BY HUDSON HAWLEY.

United News Staff Correspondent.

Paris, September 6.—King Constantine's seat on the throne of Greece is menanced by the collapse of his army in Asia Minor, according to uncensored information from Athens reaching here.

Successive victories by the Turks have culminated in a complete demoralization of the Greek forces. This debacle has stirred up a storm of dissatisfaction in Athens so deep-seated that it may lead to the fall of Constantine. The cabinet is expected to quit at any moment. Supporters of former Premier Venizelos are extremely active and will make a determined efforts to return him to power.

Latest dispatches from the front indicate that the Greek cause is all but lost. The retreat of the Greeks appears to have turned into a rout and the Turks are pursuing the demoralized army with cavalry and airplanes.

URGE SOUTHERNER TO SIT ON BENCH IN SUPREME COURT

Two More Vacancies May Be Created by Resignations of Justices Day and Holmes.

COURT NOW UNEVENLY DIVIDED POLITICALLY

Seven Republicans and Only Two Democrats Now on Bench—Sentiment Strong for Southerner.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 6.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Current talk at the capital of two additional resignations of members of the supreme court has developed a strong sentiment for naming a southern Democrat to fill one of the places.

The official statement from the white house last night that Justice William R. Day has under consideration his resignation is being pointed to today as a strong indication that he will leave the bench. At the same time, it was reliably reported that Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes will follow a like course, due to his ill health in recent years.

Succession of Justice Sutherland, who was confirmed by the senate Tuesday, to Justice Clarke's place divides the supreme court seven to two as between the two major political parties, seven being republicans and two democrats. While the supreme court is deemed officially to be outside the category of politics, it is the usual custom to maintain a more even balance in appointments. For this reason political observers are generally agreed that Justice Day's place will go to a democrat, and most likely one from the south.

Senator Shields, democrat, Tennessee, was being prominently mentioned for the place today, and it is understood that he is held in high esteem by the president. A lawyer by profession, Senator Shields served as chief justice of the supreme court of Tennessee. His friendship with the president developed during the time they served in the senate together.

Appointment Improbable.

Due, however, to Tennessee being already represented on the supreme court bench, in the person of Justice McReynolds, it is thought not likely that Senator Shields will receive the appointment. President Harding, observers believe, will look over the southern field and will go to another state for the selection.

President Taft did not hesitate to appoint demorats to the supreme court. During his four years' term he had the appointment of five members of the highest court, more than any other president, except the first, ever named in so brief a time. He appointed Associate Justices Lamar and Lurton, democrats, Van de Vanter, Pitney and Hughes, republicans, and promoted Associate Justice White, democrat, to be chief justice.

During his eight years in the white house President Wilson appointed only three members of the court—Associate Justices Brandeis, McReynolds and Clarke, all democrats. Even so, the political balance remained the

With only three precincts missing in Wednesday's race for mayor, Walter A. Sims missed securing a majority over his combined opposition by only 1,037 votes, leading James G. Woodward, who ran second, by 3,927 votes. A runover race will be necessary between the two.

Of the grand total of 12,315 votes cast in the election, Mr. Sims secured 6,676 votes. Mr. Woodward was second with 2,749 votes; J. R. Nutting ran third with 2,040 votes; Chief of Police James L. Beavers was fourth with 1,044 votes; Dr. John C. White was fifth with 651 votes, and Charles F. Jackson tailed the ticket with 191 votes.

Mr. Woodward announced after the returns had been compiled that he would demand a runover election, and called upon all his supporters to lend him their aid in the second contest.

Predicts Victory.

Mr. Sims expressed high gratification at his race, and predicted that he would easily win in the second contest.

An analysis of the situation in the mayor's race showed that Mr. Sims carried every ward in the city except the eighth ward, which was won by Mr. Nutting.

Other candidates for the city hall offices elected on the face of returns with only a few precincts missing early Thursday morning were:

City Electrician J. C. Turner, who secured 6,852 votes as compared to 4,378 votes for his opponent, George H. McKee, Jr.

Recorder George E. Johnson, who defeated C. Don Miller in a spirited contest, Johnson receiving 7,690 votes against 4,868 for Miller.

W. H. "Bill" Johnson, city warden, who easily defeated G. W. Lindsey, Johnson received 6,161 votes against 2,711 for Lindsey.

Runover Necessary.

The race for chief of construction failed to develop an outstanding candidate, and a runover race between W. A. Hansell and C. S. Robert will be necessary. Hansell ran first with 5,201 votes; Robert was a close second with 5,004, and W. W. Lotspeich, the third candidate, was eliminated, receiving only 1,805 votes.

Marvin P. Roane and F. B. Florence, his opponent for tax collector, were running neck and neck, Roane receiving 5,932 and Florence 5,904.

Jones H. Ewing, Jr., and Thomas J. Peeples ran a spirited race for treasurer, Ewing leading Peeples by a Woodward to Run Again.

"The people of Atlanta must stand behind me and I will clean up that damnable bunch of office-holders and tinkers who are trying by the most questionable means to run this city government," said James G. Woodward, in announcing that he would fight to the last ditch to "clean out the whole bunch" of politicians, whom he claims, aided by the Twelve-Twenty club and other organizations working to the detriment of Atlanta, attempted to carry the city election yesterday.

"This is a crisis in which the people of Atlanta, who put me in the race, must stand behind me in order that we may save our city by killing this underhand domination of our government right now. We must meet the issue and meet it boldly, and if the people will stand behind me, we will once and for all show them who is to run Atlanta."

Sims Thanks Friends.

"I believe that the great majority of the people of this city have by their choice expressed their desire that I serve them as mayor for the next ensuing term and I propose to so serve them and advise that they see to it that their names appear upon the registration lists," said Walter A. Sims.

"I do not claim that this is my victory but it is a victory of the great masses of the people of the city of Atlanta against ring-rule politics and I propose to stand by the people who have selected me as their standard-bearer and help rid this great city of the evils of ring-rule politics.

"I cannot conceive of how my nearest competitor can hope to win in a second primary when the vote I received was more than double that which he received.

"To the people of the city who supported me in this race I wish to extend my sincere thanks and to assure them that I shall continue their fight until victory is won.

"For my opponents I have nothing but the warmest praise, for they have fought a clean fight and lost. And I wish to extend to each and all of them an invitation to join me and the great masses of the people in our fight for popular government and the interest of Atlanta."

Couch Makes Statement.

"I am profoundly grateful for the confidence in my past efforts and future purposes which you displayed by your votes," said J. Allen Couch. The vote is particularly gratifying to me because it was the first instance of any councilman's receiving a third consecutive term from the fifth ward.

"It is a pleasure to realize that I shall have the opportunity for at least two more years of service. It is my intention to work among other projects for the extension of either Jones or North avenue to Maddox park, making a continuous highway from Decatur to Austell. I prefer North avenue's extension.

"The campaign is over, and I shall attempt to serve all alike—those who were unable to vote for me as well as those who were my supporters. I wish to disclaim any ill will toward any person as a consquence of the race. My one aim is to improve the fifth ward in every way in which I am capable."

Twelve Winners.

Twelve candidates were named during the day as a result of the fact that they had no opposition. They were:

City Marshal W. E. Harwell, re-elected; Building Inspector C. J. Bowen, re-elected; alderman, eighth, ward, C. E. Buchanan, elected; councilman, fourth ward, Dr. C. J. Vaughan, elected; councilman, sixth ward, Harry York, elected; councilman, eighth ward, James M. Wells, elected; councilman, eleventh ward, W. R. POLICE ARE PROBING MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING

A mysterious shooting occurred Wednesday afternoon on the Highland road a little way off the Marietta road which kept city and county officials busy until Wednesday evening, when friends of Eugene Coleman stated to the police that he had fired several shots into the air to frighten J. C. White and Mrs. Mary Davis, both of Atlanta, who, it is said, were in the woods near his home. White, 20 years old, and Mrs. Davis, same age, both of 272 South Pryor street, are being held at the police station under blanket charges of suspicion.

M. L. Moss, who lives about 100 yards from the spot where the shooting took place, hearing screams from a woman, ran to investigate the affair. H. Jackson, who lives nearby, did likewise. They observed a man and a woman fleeing from the woods and pursued them. After telephoning to Atlanta that the couple would come in a street car, they boarded the same car and came also. Call Officer W. A. Gude and Turnkey Collins met the car and took the couple into custody. When the officers reached the car they discovered Jackson with a shotgun in his hands, which he had brought along to prevent the couple's escape.

It developed that White and Mrs. Davis had gone to the spot on Highland road together with two other men and a woman. The two got out of the car and entered the woods, according to police reports. Coleman, seeing them enter the woods, which are quite near his house, got his shotgun and fired into the air several times to scare them off, the police were told.

When questioned by the police White gave several different versions of the affair. When checked up on and asked why he was not sticking to a single version, he replied that he wished to protect the women.

The other two men and the other woman have not yet been identified. White stated that he did not know any of the occupants of the car save Mrs. Davis. When the shots were fired the other occupants jumped out of the car and fled. They have not yet been located.

$10,000 RESIDENCE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Approximately $10,000 damage was done to the residence of J. M. Estes, 10 Kirkwood road, Wednesday by flames, which are said to have developed as a result of a defective flue, setting fire to the roof. Several fire companies answered the call but the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the house from an almost total destruction, together with most of the furniture.

He had been for a number of years in very bad health, caused by a paralytic stroke and was confined to a rolling chair. He made his home in Augusta with his sister, Mrs. Whitney, and in Thomasville with another sister, Miss Sallie Stark. The body was accompanied home by Miss Stark.

LA FOLLETTE GETS RECORD MAJORITY

Milwaukee, September 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Senator Robert M. La Follette has been swept into the republican nomination for United States senator at the November election in this state by the greatest majority that any candidate has ever polled at a primary in Wisconsin.

Returns received from more than four-fifths of the state early tonight show him leading by 178,333, W. A. Ganfield, of Waukesha, president of Carroll college, his only opponent. The vote from 2,057 out of 2,523 precincts in the state was: La Follette, 294,857; Ganfield, 116,524.

In rolling up this tremendous majority Senator La Follette carired with him what was known as the entire La Follette slate from United States senator down to attorney-general.

Governor Blaine who headed the La Follete state ticket likewise rolled up a remarkable vote and with 2,051 precincts out of the 2,523 reporting tonight he had a plurality over his nearest opponent, Attorney-General William J. Morgan, of 133,769.

What appears to be the only real upset of the primary is the contest for congressman in the eleventh district, where Congressman Adolphus P. Nelson rated as a dry and loyally supported by the Anti-Saloon league is running more than 4,000 behind Hubert P. Peavey, of Washburn, who was indorsed and assisted by the association opposed to prohibition.

tion was conducted and stated that he would have unquestionably been nominated on the first ballot, had it not have been for the confusion in the registration lists. His statement follows:

"It was advertised that the voters who participated in the bond election and in the charter election could vote in the election for mayor and other city officials and I have had hundreds of people who went to the polls today with the intention of voting for me to inform me that they were not allowed to vote because their names were not on the registration lists although they participated in the bond election and in the charter election.

"I am not censuring the registrar but evidently there has been a grave mistake made in the transferring of their names from the old registration lists to the new lists, and I am satisfied that this mistake or ill advice has cost me at least 500 votes in this election.

"I saw at the polls today more than 100 people who had a certificate from the registrar to the effect that they had paid their taxes and were eligible to vote but not permitted to vote by the managers and clerks of the different precincts and almost without exception these men and women wanted to vote for me. Several men and women phoned me that they had been to the polls intending to vote for me but their names had not been placed upon the registration lists and that they did not even go to the registrar in order to get it straightened out.

"I am satisfied that if the people who had intended to vote were allowed to vote under the rules as published governing this primary, that my nomination would have been decisive on the first ballot but many of them were refused the right for the reasons above stated.

Attacks "12-20. Club."

Charges that many of Atlanta's best citizens were prevented from casting their votes for "order and decency" by the machinations of the Twelve-Twenty club were made by James G. Woodward, who came out with second honors in the mayoralty race in a field of six candidates in the election.

"The election from all reports reaching me," Mr. Woodward stated, "was the most damnable piece of political practice witnessed in Atlanta in many years. Members of the Twelve-Twenty club were provided photographs of those they were to vote for, as well as given marked ballots.

"Any number of our most respected citizens were prevented from casting their ballots because their names were not on the registration lists. Among these were many men who have been registered for many years. A great number of them voted in the charter election.

"Just one of the many who came to my office and protested the efforts made to steal the election in behalf of the Twelve-Twenties was Frank G. Lake, one of the most prominent and respected of our citizens. He has been a registered voter here for many years."

G. & F. RAIL OFFICER COMMITS SUICIDE

Augusta, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—D. F. Kirkland, director of development of the Georgia and Florida railroad, and formerly general manager of the road, committed suicide near here Wednesday morning by shooting himself in the head with a 38-calibre Smith and Wesson pistol. He left a note addressed to his wife and children, bidding them "goodbye," but giving no reason for his act. Friends say poor health was the cause.

Sheriff Plunkett found the body lying on the floor of the Kirkland's automobile, shot through the head. The note bidding good bye to his family was found under a box of cartridges on the front seat. His collar and tie, gl and hat were placed on the back seat.

Mr. Kirkland was seen driving along the Wrightsboro road by a negro woman, who shortly afterward heard the shot, and upon investigating discovered the body. The car was parked about a mile and a half from the Washington road on the Picquet and Skinner road.

Mr. Kirkland was one of Augusta's most prominent citizens. For a number of years he was identified in an official capacity with the Georgia and Florida railroad, serving for a number of years as gen ral manager during the war. He held a responsible position with the railroad administration, with headquarters in Atlanta. He was one of the best known railroad officials in the south.

He had been with the Georgia and Florida for ten or twelve years, previous to which he was with the A. C. L. and other railroads in this section.

He is survived by his widow and four children.

reason several hundred persons who were not on the registration books were allowed to vote.

"When the new lists were made up these names were scratched and the majority of those persons who were refused ballots at the election today were those who had not qualified by registering between the period beginning October 1, 1921, and ending August 7, 1922.

"A number of persons, whose names were given in from the wrong ward and whom, after we had checked up the official lists were placed on a supplementary list and added to the official registration list. This probably caused a little confusion."

"This morning when a number of persons appeared in my office to know why their names were not on the official registration lists, I found that they had either forgotten to register when they paid in their taxes or were under the impression that because they had been permitted to vote in the bond and charter elections, they considered themselves registered.

"That was my reason for issuing the certificates to them after I had obtained an affidavit from them in which they swore to those facts. Not more than 300 persons in all came to my office the entire day and only about 100 of them were given certificates."

Sims' Statement.

Mr. Sims, in a formal statement to The Constitution, Wednesday night, deplored the manner in which the election was conducted.

WARM CONTESTS SEEN IN TIFT ELECTIONS

Tifton, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—There will be only three contests in the Tift county primary September 13, the time for entries with the Tift county Democratic executive committee having expired. Representative L. E. Brown is not offering for re-election. Former Senator A. C. Ellis and former Representative R. E. Hall are staging a hot contest for the office.

R. E. Dinsmore, solicitor of the city court, is seeking re-election. He is opposed by a former solicitor, J. S. Ridgdill. John Branch, county commissioner from the Brighton, Brookfield and Chula districts, is opposed by N. L. Coarsey in the former's effort for re-election. J. H. Price, judge of the city court of Tifton, is unopposed.

TAX RATE INCREASED IN LOWNDES COUNTY

Valdosta, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—The county commissioners, in their meeting Tuesday fixed the tax levy for Lowndes county for the year 1922 at fifteen and one-half mills, an increase of five and one-half mills over the levy for 1921.

The increase this year is necessary because the entire issue of country bonds, amounting to half a million dollars, is outstanding and drawing interest, and also to take care of increases in expenses due to the natural growth of the county.

More than 7,000 young men in the United States are attending the reserve officers' training camps.

With only five of the 26 precincts to be heard from, the vote stood as follows: For the use of the park land, 2,850; against use of the park tract, 4,357. Final returns were expected by those who led the determined fight against the proposal to swell the total against the proposal.

JEWELS OF GIRLS TRACED TO GRAHAM

Macon, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—H. C. Graham, charged with kidnaping Mrs. Garnett Starr and Miss Valeria Lamar, of Macon, sister, will reach Macon early tomorrow morning in the custody of a Bibb county sheriff, having been arrested yesterday in Jacksonville, Fla.

According to information from Jacksonville, Graham denies any knowledge of the whereabouts of the two sisters and says the last time he saw them was at their home in Macon the day before they disappeared.

An interesting development of today, considered damaging to Graham, is the discovery that one of the pawn tickets found on him at the time of his arrest, was for a cluster stickpin which had belonged to Mrs. Starr. Graham also had another pawn ticket for a ring, both of which articles he had pawned shortly after reaching Jacksonville, officials say.

It is the belief of Warren Roberts, uncle of the two girls, who is now in Jacksonville searching for his nieces, that they are in Jacksonville or at some other point in Florida. He is understood to believe that there is another man involved in the disappearance of the girls, and that he is now with them.

Bronze Memorial Asked at Griffin To Women of 60's

Griffin, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—The Boynton chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will erect at an early date a granite boulder in memory of the "women of the sixties."

The boulder will be of Georgia granite and will carry a bronze tablet appropriately engraved. The monument will be eight feet high and the bronze tablet will be 18 by 26 inches. It will be placed in the parkway on Solomon street at the intersection of Eighth street.

The boulder will be unveiled the last part of September with appropriate exercises. The speaker for the occasion has not been announced at this time.

The women voters of Spalding county at a recent meeting passed resolutions indorsing Judge J. J. Flynt for congress. Judge Flynt did not vote for the amendment permitting suffrage for women, when that amendment came before the Georgia legislature. He believed the question should be settled by each state.

GOVERNMENT TO GIVE FARMERS PICRIC ACID

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 6.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Following the announcement recently that the government, through the bureau of public roads, is prepared to distribute practically free a large quantity of picric acid to farmers of the country for blasting purposes, Charles S. Barrett, of Georgia, president of the National Farmers' union, issued a statement today in which he calls upon the farmers of the state to immediately take advantage of the offer.

Mr. Barrett arrived in Washington the first of the week. At the same time it was announced that the government now has approximately 5,000,000 pounds of the material for distribution which may be obtained by farmers at a nominal cost of about 6 cents a pound. This will be distributed through the public roads bureau, and farmers may obtain supplies of the explosive through any state agricultural college or state agricultural extension service.

The announcement that the government has a large quantity of picric acid for free distribution, practically, should be of particular interest to the farmers of Georgia, and the whole country for that matter, Mr. Barrett said.

FLORIDA JURIST DIES AT SUMMER HOME IN MAINE

Kittery, Maine, September 6.—Judge James W. Locke, of Jacksonville Fla., died at his summer home here today, aged 85 years. He was born in Wilmington, Vt., October 30, 1837. In October, 1875, he was appointed to the United States supreme court for the southern district of Florida. He resigned July 4, 1912. At one time he served on the bench of the circuit court of appeals at New Orleans. He was a republican and a civil war veteran.

TRUTH BACKS RUMOR OF RAIL SETELEMENT

ing Washington to attend to business of a strictly confidential nature within the next twenty-four hours, to reappear in Chicago next Monday when Attorney-General Daugherty will argue for a permanent injunction. Jewell is also expected to appear at that time.

Fourth—That Johnston has not yet been served with the injunction writ, although Tuesday morning while he was addressing a group of local strikers, a United States deputy called at his office with certain papers, none of which was the Daugherty injunction.

Information regarding progress of the present rail negotiations is to be kept confidential until the striking shopmen are themselves ready to divulge it to the public, Johnston declared. This, it was indicated, may not be far distant.

DAUGHERTY CHARGES CONSPIRACY BY LEADERS.

BY ROBERT J. BENDER, United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, September 6.—Attorney-General Daugherty has what he regards as conclusive proof of "a few misguided labor leaders," carrying on an "unquestioned conspiracy to paralyze transportation in this country."

Hence, in anticipation of the hearing to be held in Chicago, September 11, to make the temporary injunction granted there against the shop craftsmen permanent, Daugherty has challenged leaders both publicly and through the usual processes of law to appear in court next Monday and bring with them all documentary data.

By this means, Daugherty declared in a formal statement Wednesday night, leaders will have "the fullest opportunity of free speech and under circumstances that will give the greatest value to their utterances."

Furthermore, he added, the documentary data of these men will be such "that the public could judge whether or not they continuously attempted to paralyze interstate commerce and thus starve the community, in order to enforce, by coercion, their demands."

Carrying On Probe.

It is learned that the justice department for some time has been carrying on a searching investigation and a successful one, it is said, to get evidence. One labor leader has been served with a subpoena to appear in court at Chicago, Monday, and others are being sought.

"I give little credit to the rumors that any of these defendants have gone to Canada and taken with them the records of their activities," Daugherty declared. "Such a course would be foolish, as the government is not without duplicates of such documentary evidence and can readily subpoena the telegraph companies to produce telegrams."

Daugherty, apparently disturbed by the reaction to his injunction proceedings, which has become quite outspoken in the senate, and to the defies of some of the labor leaders, indicated plainly that he is anxious to get the whole case before the people of the country.

EXECUTIVES FIRM, ASSERTS CUYLER.

New York, September 6.—Reports that peace is imminent in the strike of railroad shopmen are "absolutely without foundation," according to T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the association of railway executives.

"The roads are standing squarely on the platform adopted by them at their meeting, August 23," said Cuyler. "The executives are a unit as to this, and are entirely satisfied with present conditions."

This platform denies to striking shopmen the restoration of their seniority rights.

The collapse of the strike, Cuyler declared, is in sight, because roads now have 302,000 maintenance men at work, compared with 400,000 before the strike began.

Cuyler is one of the so-called "bitter-end" eastern group which has opposed any compromise. Whether or not shopmen's leaders were seeking peace with some of the southern and western roads could not be learned at his office.

Ask Impeachments.

Meantime, the general strike committee of the metropolitan area has telegraphed Senator Borah asking immediate impeachment of Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty and Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Daugherty asked, and Wilkerson granted the federal injunction directed against strikers.

"The injunction against the striking railroad shopmen constitutes a violation by high government officials of the constitutional guarantees of American freedom, and of specific federal statutes without precedent in the history of the country," said the telegram.

The Central Trades and Labor council, a federation composed of some 600 New York unions, have invited Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Bert M. Jewell, leader of the striking shopmen, to address a meeting Thursday night.

The meeting will act on a recommendation of the executive committee that each union man in the city give one day's pay toward support of the railroad strike.

WRECKERS BLAMED IN SOUTHERN WRECK.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Jacksonville, Fla., September 6.—Derailment of the Southern railway Royal Palm Limited, northbound for Cincinnati, just outside the railroad yards here last night, resulted from the activities of wreckers, local officials of the Southern announced today. Several cars of the train left the rails but remained upright, the Limited having been running slowly at the time, and no one was injured.

The derailment at first was believed to have resulted from the accidental splitting of a switch but an examination of the switch-stand disclosed that the switch lock was missing, it was stated. The eye of the lock which apparently had been severed with a hacksaw, was found on the ground.

Officials said that after the lock had been broken the switch was set in such a manner that a train passing over it would jar the switch point open. This, they said, accounted for the fact that the engine and mail car passed safely over them while the half dozen cars following were ditched.

FEDERAL OFFICERS MAY AID IN PROBE.

That the federal government will be asked to aid railroad and state officers in their investigation of the wreck of the Royal Palm a few miles out of Jacksonville, Fla., early Wednesday morning, was intimated by local officials who have been in close touch with the situation.

It has been charged by officers of the Southern railway that the derailment of four cars was the result of a plot on the part of persons, who, after filing rail bolts, left a switch half set.

It was regarded by officials of the railway company as nothing short of a miracle that no one was injured during the derailment. The engine and one car passed over the switch safely, it is said, while the other coaches left the tracks without turning over.

Passengers on the wrecked train were carried back to Jacksonville by train No. 10, of the Southern, and brought to Atlanta via Jesup.

BOBBY FIGHTS WAY TO THIRD ROUND

Bobby Strikes Snag.

Bobby Jones ran true to form in running into a tough match for the day. He tangled with Bob Gardner, played a 73 in the morning, and finished the first eighteen all even with the former titleholder.

On the last nine of the morning round Bobby played par golf, and while he was doing this Mr. Gardner won four of the nine holes.

In the afternoon both Jones and Gardner played the brand of golf that cheers the dub. For Jones it was the first bad play he has shown in six rounds since the play here began. The Atlanta boy got back to form ahead of Gardner, however, and won his match, 3 and 2.

Knepper has a match on his hands with Tolley on Thursday, and if he can play hearse to the stock Britisher, Sioux City can afford to invest in some fireworks with the legitimate hope that there may be some reason for touching them off next Saturday night.

Little George Aulbach, the one remaining public links product, fought a game uphill battle against Cryil Tolley Wednesday and all he got for his pains was a thorough soaking. He was up on Tolley at the end of the morning round and still had his advantage as far as the 23d hole in the smothering downpour that made the day's golf properly an aquatic sport, but from then on Tolley took him and won handily, 3 and 2.

McPhail Upsets Dope.

With the exception of the Knepper victory over Ouimet, the only other upset for the day was McPhail's victory over Johnston of St. Paul. McPhail, a Massachusetts boy and a newcomer in the amateur national event, takes on Bobby Jones in Thursday's play.

Bobby's friends are hoping that the young southerner won't have to shoot better than par to stop his adversary but the dope says that McPhail will probably shoot the round of his young life against the Atlanta youngster. For some reason they all go good when they shoot against Jones.

Thursday's great matches look like Sweetser and Guilford, and Tolley and Knepper. Of the other two Jones should take care of McPhail and Evans rates a win against Godchaux.

The Sweetser-Guilford match will probably carry the gallery from the beginning. It is Guilford's first hard match. The champion has been knocking them kicking with 8, 9, 10 and 11, but if Sweetser stays together on Thursday he should have a real test, for the Metropolitan champ is playing a fighty brand of golf these days. Sweetser and Guilford, Tolley and Knepper. A pair of matches to make the best of dopesters wonder which to watch.

And when the Thursday results are in, the choice for the champion will be little better than even money in the betting.

Afternoon Play.

Jones and Gardner, starting the afternoon all square, halved the first hole. Gardner was on the green with his iron; overplayed the round rebound on the second attempt and halved in fives.

On the second, Jones first and second shots were in the rough. His approach was shot and he conceded the hole to his opponent, 3-5, Gardner one up.

Gardner was in the rough with driver and iron on the 435-yard third, and lost to Jones, 5 to 4. With the match square again the next two holes were halved in a terrific thunderstorm. Jones gained the lead again on the sixth with a birdie three. His second was within three feet of the hole.

Jones was trapped on the seventh and took a four to the green. He conceded the hole to Gardner, who was close up with his iron shot. All even.

Gardner required three putts on the 365-yard eighth for a five. Jones, with a perfect birdie three, gained the lead again, and made it two up at the twenty-seventh hole when the westerner again fell off in his putting.

Morning Play.

Bobby Jones met with stiff opposition from Bobby Gardner in the second day of play at the country club today. Gardner, runner-up on various occasions and twice a winner of the classic event, held the southern sensation to an all-even basis at the half-way mark before one of the largest morning galleries seen thus far.

Jones was soft on his pitches, yet was able to lay the ball dead on the greens. At no time during this match did he take three putts. Four times he found the rough from the tee and outhit the hard-hitting opponent for the first nine, while the reverse was true of the inward nine, where distance is of considerable advantage. Jones hit every hole in par coming in, and although two up at the turn, with a 37 out against a 39, saw his lead wilt away before the superior golf of the Chicagoan. But for three putts on the 16th and 18th greens, Gardner would have led by two up at the midway station. Both had cards of 73.

The kind of golf Jones is playing, emphasized by the fact that his rounds thus far, including his practice one, have been 71-73-72-73 and 71. A feature of Jones' play was the sinking of a 40-foot putt for a deuce on the third hole. Gardner was spotty in his work cutward in the first three holes of play with a 5, 4, 6 start, he played the next six all in 4s. His record for the last 15 holes of play was two under 4s. He started in dazzling style, having birdies on the eleventh and twelfth, stepping in with another at the fifteenth and registered his fourth on the seventeenth. One putt on all four holes told the story.

Hole by Hole.

Jones had a better approach than Gardner on the first hole and won it in, 4 to 5. Gardner outdrove Jones on the 305-yard second hole, but Jones, with a thirty-fot putt for a birdie, became two up. Jones won the 435-yard third in 5 to 6, when Gardner was wild with his first and second shots.

On the 300-yard fourth both were on the green easily and they halved with fours.

Gardner outdrove Bobby on the 420-yard fifth. Their thirds lay with in five feet of the hole. Jones missed an easy putt, but Gardner sank his. Jones two up.

The sixth was halved in par fours.

On the 200-yard seventh Jones' drive was on the edge of the green and he was down in three. Gardner's chip was short and he overlapped the hole. Jones three up again.

The eighth was halved in par fours.

Gardner won the ninth when Jones was short with his second putt.

On the 385-yard tenth Gardner was obliged to mashie out of the rough. Both played to within a few feet of the hole with their thirds and halved in par four.

Gardner's second was on a hill overlooking the green on the eleventh. He pitched to within four feet of the flag for a birdie four, Jones just failed to score a half with a ten-foot putt. Jones one up.

Gardner evened the match with a birdie two on the 140-yard twelfth. He dropped his drive within four feet of the pin and sank his putt easily.

They halved the 380-yard thirteenth in par fours.

Jones was in the rough from the fourteenth tee. His second was close to a stone wall, but he was on the edge of the green in three.

A 35-foot putt rolled across the hole, Gardner was on in three and sank in two putts, halving the hole.

On the 375-yard fifteenth Gardner boomed off a tremendous drive. Dropped his iron shot within eight feet of the pin and sank for a birdie three and a one-up lead again.

On the 400-yard eighteenth, Gardner reached the edge of the green in two, but Jones was a trifle short. He played well, however, and sank for a four. Gardner missed a four chance to halve and lost his lead, the pair finishing all square at the end of the forenoon 18-hole play.

Frank Godchaux, of New Orleans, was leading George Rotan, of Houston, Texas, by a slender margin of one up at the end of the first 18 holes. Their cards were unusual as both had the same total and the same amount for the inward and outward half. Neither was playing the brand of golf of which they are capable.

Godchaux, runner-up to Jones in the southern amateur this year, led at the turn by one up. Rotan piled up an early lead, winning three of the first five holes played, only one of which his opponent was able to register a par figure.

The last four, however, the reverse was true, and Godchaux won in the win column were divided.

Arthur Wrigley Independent

Since I have entered the race for County Commissioner from the Country, in addition to campaigning I have been looking about a little.

I recognize that the building of good streets and good roads in the City and County is perhaps one of the most important things coming under the jurisdiction of the Board of Commissioners and I see where some very important work has been sadly neglected and ought to be corrected.

Ponce de Leon Avenue, for example, from Peachtree Street to the Southern Railway Belt Line, near the Ball Park, has been in a deplorable condition for eight or ten years. I regard this as one of the streets that the County ought to help the City fix, and I am willing to put myself on record now that if I am elected, I will use every effort in my power to see that this is done.

I find that the Loyd Street sewer back of Grant Park has been allowed to empty its contents for a long time in a neighborhood where it is both dangerous and disagreeable. It ought to be extended for a considerable distance to a less settled neighborhood. If this sewer had been in place, it is quite probable that the land back of Grant Park might have been selected for the Girls' High School. I am willing to promise, if I am elected, to do everything in my power to extend this sewer.

I have observed that the Tenth Ward has been neglected in the matter of paving. Such important avenues as Dill Avenue, Pierce Street and Deckner Street are at places almost impassable. This is not right and I am willing to pledge myself to do the best I can to rectify it.

I observe that the Flat Shoals Road, out in the Eleventh Ward, one of the oldest and most traveled country roads going out of Atlanta, is in a most deplorable condition and yet it leads into a thickly settled part of the adjoining county and from the very center of the City, since it connects with Fair Street. I promise to do my best to rectify this, if elected.

I have observed that Spring Street, the much heralded new thoroughfare that has been promised the public for several years, has been played with here and there without having, in fact, been put in condition to serve the purpose for which it was intended. I believe this error should be corrected and am willing to pledge myself to use my best efforts in behalf of completing Spring Street from the new viaduct to Brookwood as quickly as possible.

I have informed myself about the Courtland Street and Piedmont Avenue projects for opening up new avenues on the eastern side of Peachtree Street and I approve them in every particular and think the County should lend its assistance to the City in putting this through as quickly as possible.

I have also observed that Marietta Road in sections has been sadly neglected, and since this is one of the main thoroughfares leading into Cobb County and to the City of Marietta, it ought to be among the very first to receive consideration at the hands of the Board, and I pledge myself to give my efforts towards this project also.

I am still looking around and I may find other things of just as great importance as these.

I recognize that it is exceedingly important that when contracts are let for the construction of roads and streets by the County, they should be let to contractors who carry out their contracts and who do not vary the specifications in order to increase profits. I have been informed that Decatur Street and Marietta Street, now under contract to the Construction Company which is backing my opponent in this race and who openly call Mr. Johnson their candidate, are not being constructed according to specifications and inferior materials are being used. Fulton County is contributing the proportionate part of the cost of these streets that is otherwise payable by the City. I do not believe that the public, however much they may acquit Mr. Johnson of any deliberate purpose to be influenced, will feel safe in electing a man whose cause is championed as actively as Mr. Johnson's cause is by a contracting firm who so perform the contracts which are let to them.

I assure the public that if I am elected as a County Commissioner of this County, I will be independent of all influences which might tend to make an official forget his duty. I will be impartial to all sections of the County and to all people in the County, regardless of standing or surroundings. I will do my full duty as I see it.

To the White Voters of Fulton County:

Your vote, influence and support are requested in behalf of—

W. D. Ellis

Candidate for re-election as Judge of the Superior Court of Fulton County, subject to the primary of September 13th.

Judge Ellis has served the people in that capacity for many years, capably, fearlessly, and honestly.

Ninety per cent of the lawyers of this County requested him to offer for re-election and now endorse him for this office.

Lawyers do not elect a Judge, but they are better qualified to pass on the capabilities of candidates for this office than any other class of people.

Judge Ellis is opposed by Mr. Carl F. Hutcheson.

Ask your own lawyer before you go to the polls.

This office is of more vital importance to the people than any other in their gift.

Will you displace a man of proven ability, integrity, and fairness from so important a position?

SPRINGFIELD HERALD
(Effingham County)

"Among others, there is one able and faithful public official our people should not forget, and that is Hon. James A. Perry, who is running for re-election as one of the Railroad Commissioners. He is one of the hardest working men we have anywhere, and his public record and splendid service for the people of this state justly entitles him to our support. Let's re-elect him, and do it handsomely." MILLEN NEWS

CEDARTOWN STANDARD
(Polk County)

"There is no office in the State Capitol which is more technical in point of jurisdiction than our Railroad Commission. Mr. Perry has grown to be one of the very ablest men to ever serve on this important tribunal. Indeed, his energy and ability have made him a national figure in matters of rate adjustment. He has made good and the state is to be congratulated on the opportunity to be able to keep him in the service."

MISS ANNA BAYLEY NOW RESTING WELL

Miss Anna Belle Bayley, 18, of 117 Forrest avenue, Decatur, who was seriously injured in a collision Tuesday evening near Cornelia between the automobile in which she was riding and a train on the Tallulah branch of the Southern railway, Wednesday night was reported by surgeons at the Atlanta hospital to be resting comfortably, and "doing as well as could be expected." It is reported she suffered a fracture of the hip, and probably serious internal injuries.

Miss Bayley was in an automobile with Misses Marjorie and Marie Black, of Cornelia, whom she was visiting. They were returning to Cornelia at the time of the accident. Conflicting reports have been received as to the cause of the collision—some saying that the engine went dead on the track, and others claiming that they attempted to cross too close in front of the approaching train.

Miss Marjorie Black was killed, and her sister was also seriously hurt. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Black. Mr. Black is the city manager of the Consolidated Apple Growers exchange.

Miss Bayley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight S. Bayley. Up to a short while ago Mr. Bayley was field director in the American Red Cross association, and is now connected with Martin & Hoyt, publishers. He was on a business trip in North Carolina at the time of the accident.

He had lived in Decatur for the past five years, his home in Atlanta being destroyed by the big fire in 1917.

She is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. Mose Strauss, Mrs. Joe Prince, and Mrs. C. P. Campbell; a son, Arthur D. NEGRO WOMAN CLAIMS YOUNG BOY TOOK $960

"I hired him to take care of my house, but instead he took my money," was the pitiful complaint Sarah Fair, negro woman, of 164 Fort street, unfolded to detectives Wednesday morning, in telling how she had engaged a young negro boy to help her while she was sick abed, and how he had located and stolen $960, which she had placed in a tin cup in the cupboard of her home. The boy's name and address the woman did not know, she told the officers. However, she furnished them with a good description of him.

COTTON GROWERS WILL HOLD MEETING TODAY

The Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association will meet in executive session today at 18 Stewart avenue. The executive committee includes 23 members. J. E. Conwell, president, will preside.

Dr. E. C. Morris Dies.

Better Pavement For Peachtree Road Is Voted

Settling a storm of protest, raised by a large number of Peachtree road citizens against an inferior grade of pavement being laid along the car tracks on Peachtree road between Brookwood and Buckhead, the Fulton county board of commissioners Wednesday afternoon voted to remove that portion of the inadequate pavement already laid and pave the entire strip with concrete.

Another action of the board of importance to citizens of that section was the acceptance of a bid by the Morris Construction company to dredge and straighten Peachtree creek. It is expected that the work will be begun at an early date. According to the contractors, they are ready for the undertaking.

The committee on public works had recommended that a pavement to consist of seven inches of penetration stone be laid in lieu of the three-inch layer which had been begun, following a hearing Tuesday at which representatives of two north side civic bodies declared the surface being laid entirely unsatisfactory.

Following the report of the committee to the board, several members of the North-of-Buckhead Improvement club and the Peachtree Heights Park Civic association spoke for a concrete pavement on the ground that it would be of a more permanent nature than the rock and macadam surface.

Owing to the lack of material, it is not known when the work will begin, according to Commissioner Hope. He also stated that at present there is not enough money in the county treasury to pay the difference between the concrete paving and the paving ordinarily called for in the contract. It is expected, however that sufficient funds will have been collected before the county is ready to begin actual work on the concrete surface.

Watson States He Would Vote Against Hardwick

The outstanding development in the state political campaign Wednesday was a telepraphic correspondence between Representative Tobe Daniel, of Troup, and United States senator, Thomas E. Watson, in which the senator authorized the statement that if he was in Georgia on the 13th of September, he would vote against his former running mate, Governor Thomas W. Hardwick.

Copies of the telegram were given to the press by Judge Augustus Howard, campaign manager for Hardwick in 1920, and at present the director-general of the campaign of Clifford Walker for governor to succeed Governor Hardwick.

The telegram of Representative Daniel, a life-long personal and political friend of Senator Watson, was inspired, it was stated at the Walker headquarters, by alleged statements being circulated by the Hardwick forces to the effect that John I. Kelly, of Lawrenceville, until September 1st private secretary to Senator Watson, has stated that the latter did not wish his friends to vote against Hardwick.

The reply from Senator Watson, as given out by the Walker headquarters, after telegraphis authority had been given by Senator Watson, declared that he did not believe Kelly would thus misrepresent him. "I am sure," says the telegram, "that he would not misrepresent me by telling my friends that I do not wish them to vote against Hardwick."

The entire correspondence, as given to the press, follows:

Atlanta, Ga., September 5, 1922.—Senator Thomas E. Watson, senate chamber, Washington, D. C.: See letter written last night. Have learned through good authority that Hardwick headquarters makes statement quoting John Y. Kelly as sayin, you did not wish your friends to vote against Hardwick on your account. Hardwick is beat if they do not succeed in deceiving your friends with falsehood. Would you send me telegram or letter to be used in campaign. Everybody believes Hardwick beat now. Answer Kimball house.
(Signed) TOBE DANIEL.

Washington, D. C., September 5, 1922.—T. B. Daniel, Kimball house, Atlanta, Ga.: I do not believe John Kelly said anything of the kind reported. He knows that if I were in the state of Georgia on September 13 I would vote against Hardwick and I am sure that he would not misrepresent me by telling my fritnds that I do not wish them to vote against Hardwick.
(Signed) THOMAS E. WATSON.

Atlanta, Ga., September 5, 1922.—Senator Thomas E. Watson, senate chamber, Washington, D. C.: Message received. It will do much good to publish your telegram. Too late to circulate otherwise. Will you give me authority to do so.
(Signed) TOBE DANIEL.

Washington, D. C., September 6, 1922.—Tobe Daniel, Kimball house, Atlanta, Ga.: You can use telegram as you see fit. I hav no secrets and nothing to conceal.
(Signed) THOMAS E. WATSON.

VICTORY PREDICTED BY O. M. HOUSER

O. M. Houser, candidate for commissioner of agriculture, issued a statement Wednesday in which he claimed he would be elected September 13 by "an overwhelming majority." Other candidates in this race are J. J. Brown, present commissioner, and A. O. Blalock.

Mr. Houser asserted he would get 75 per cent of the votes of the women and that south Georgia is strong for him.

School Opens.

The Lawrenceville public school opened this week with an enrollment of about 400. Professor C. O. Stubbs is superintendent, Professor J. J. Brock is principal, Professor C. E. Monfort, department of history and athletics; Miss Janice Singleton, mathematics and science, and Miss Laurie Belle Stubbs is English teacher. Miss Irene Ballard, Mrs. Lillian Exum, Mrs. Clayton Webb, Mrs. George Bagwell, Miss Georgia Byrd, Miss Vera Britt, Miss Lucile Ewing, Miss Bertha Peeples, Miss Ola Garner are grade teachers.

SCOUTS TO BOOST EDUCATIONAL WEEK

Indicative of the interest aroused by "Education Week," which began Monday, and will continue until next Monday, when school opens for the term, was the large number of pupils registering during the last three days, the number having surpassed 300, according to Willis A. Sutton, superintendent.

Final examinations were completed Wednesday by conditional pupils in the high school—that is pupils who failed to pass at the last term but who have studied through the vacation season and expect to qualify for higher grades. Examinations for grammar school pupils will be given Friday, Mr. Sutton stated.

Open Book Exchanges.

Four Atlanta schools will open book exchanges next Monday to allow children who have books for all grades above the second, an opportunity to exchange or sell books for the coming session. Exchanges will be maintained in the following schools: Walker street, Faith and Calhoun schools. In the Faith school the exchange will be conducted Friday and Monday beginning at 10 o'clock, while at the Walker and Calhoun street schools the exchange will begin at 8:30 o'clock Monday.

Members of te Atlanta Boy Souts association have arranged speaking programs in the interest of "education week" and expect to add materially to the interest now manifest in the movement. Scouts who will speak at various points in the city and the troop to which they belong are as follows:

List of Scouts.

Troop 1, College Park, Billy Miselle, Glen McGee, Sam Longino; troop 1, East Point, Sheffield Thompson, Clifton Hubbard, Harold Sheats; troop 1, Edgewood, R. O. Langley, Columbus Jones, G. B. SACRED HARP SINGERS CONVENE HERE FRIDAY

The eighteenth annual convention of the United Sacred Harp Musical association, which will bring to Atlanta leaders in organized religious singing from all parts of the country, will open Friday at the city Auditorium and will continue through Sunday.

It is said that there is a strong movement on foot to make Atlanta the national headquarters, and it is declared that should the delegates to the convention act favorably on the project, a large assembly hall will be erected here.

The official song book, "The Original Sacred Harp," containing 500 of the best known sacred hymns, which was compiled and revised from year to year by J. S. James, of Atlanta, president of the association, will be Newton, general manager, Alpharetta; used at the convention.

Officers of the association are J. S. James, president, Atlanta; Bernard Awtry, vice president, Marietta; Mrs. S. C. Casey, secretary, Atlanta; T. B. Wiley J. James, chaplain, Tallapoosa; P. B. Lowery, assistant manager, Atlanta; Mrs. Fred Drake, assistant secretary, Atlanta; Rev. D. Henderson, assistant chaplain, Jonesboro.

State Entomologist Calls Meeting on Farm Of C. R. Fitzpatrick

The state board of entomology will hold a meeting on the farm of C. R. Fitzpatrick, at Warrenton, Friday, to take up various points of successfully fighting the boll weevil, according to announcement by Ira W. Williams, general field agent of the department, Wednesday.

The meeting is being held at Mr. Fitzpatrick's farm because of the methods he used in making a crop on his 750 acres this season, which compares favorably with the crops before the ravages of the boll weevil, will furnish excellent points for study. Mr. Williams states that one object of the meeting is to demonstrate a first-hand that it is possible to raise cotton successfully when proper methods are employed to control the weevil.

BIG CHICKEN DINNER PROMISED AT CHURCH

Fried chicken will be the main attraction at a feast to be given on the lawn of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church, Friday, beginning at 5 o'clock. The church is located on South Moreland and Metropolitan avenues, in East Atlanta, on the Soldiers' home car line.

The "chicken supper" is one of the several affairs to be given for the purpose of swelling a fund that is to be used to pay the church debt, so that the building may be dedicated in October. An impressive rally day is being arranged for on that occasion.

Help! Hot Weather Wanted by Turpentine Men in Thomas County

Thomasville, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—There are some people who are glad of the hot weather. Tupentine men in this section say the summer has been so cold it has affected their crop, and now that the temperature has mounted the gum is flowing freely and they are happy.

The saw mill men also love heat wave, and farmers who have not picked cotton are glad of the opportunity to gather their crop.

Auto Patent.

Woodland, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—Olin P. Miller has received a patent on an improved automobile transmission with which it is claimed that any gear ratio from neutral to high may be effected without the use of a clutch and without interrupting the flow of power from the motor to the rear wheels. The "friction drive" principle is not employed. The drive is said to be direct and positive at any gear ratio and while changes of gear ratio are being made.

TEXANS PUT DOWN ANTI-KLAN MOVE

San Antonio, Texas, September 6. (By the Associated Press.)—By a decisive vote of 691 to 135 the Texas democratic state convention late today rejected minority reports openly denouncing the Ku Klux Klan and its activities.

The convention went into an uproar when an attempt was made to discuss the anti-klan proposal and a motion to table the report followed immediately. An attempt to present resolutions to the convention from the floor opposing the klan in milder language than the minority report, was unsuccessful, and immediately following rejection of the klan "plank" the majority report was adopted and returned.

The platform adopted by the convention contains no declaration on the klan. The only provision in this direction declares in favor of "freedom of conscience and the separation of church and state."

Shouts and continued noise accompanied the roll call vote on the motion to table the minority report. Ballots were often contested by opposing factions, and expressions for and against the klan accompanied reports from the counties.

With the exception of minor changes, the platform was adopted by the convention and approved this morning by the resolutions committee.

A provision declaring in favor of the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively as approved by the committee this morning was replaced by a statement condemning the national administration's method of handling the present railroad strike, and opposing the injunction obtained by Attorney General Daugherty in Chicago against the striking shopmen.

Frank C. Davis, of San Antonio, was unanimously re-elected chairman of the state executive committee before the convention closed. Joseph W. Hale, of Waco, was re-elected state secretary by the executive committee.

AGED CARPENTER KILLED IN FALL FROM PLATFORM

Augusta, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—Napoleon B. Howard, 67 years old, of 1927 Davison street, was fatally injured shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when he fell from a scaffold on a dwelling at 601 Eve street, striking his head on the sidewalk below.

Howard, who was a carpenter, was working on a scaffold about eight feet from the ground, and in some manner lost his balance and fell. He was rushed to the University hospital in the ambulance, but lived only a few minutes. His injuries were confined to a wound on the back of the head, which was inflicted when he struck the pavement.

FEDERAL PRISONERS ARE TAKEN TO ATHENS

Nine federal prisoners, who, it is said, will testify against federal guards at the Atlanta prison, implicated, authorities say, in the cases resulting from the alleged exposure of a "narcotic ring" in the prison several months ago, were transferred to the Clarke county jail, at Athens Monday, it was revealed Wednesday, by Clint W. Hager, United States district attorney.

The nature of the information in possession of the convicts was not disclosed. Hager intimated that other prisoners who might be called to testify in the case might be transferred later in the week.

313 STILLS RAIDED IN MONTH OF AUGUST

The activities of the manufacturers of illicit liquor in Georgia have been retarded, according to the report made public Wednesday by Fred D. Dismuke, federal prohibition agent for the state.

A total of 313 stills, 2,040 gallons of "white mule," 253,315 gallons of beer, and 13 automobiles were seized during the month by the federal agents, the report showed. A total of 325 arrests were made, and property involved in the liquor traffic valued at $55,319 was destroyed.

Dismuke said the federal authorities were receiving the hearty cooperation of state and city officers.

NO RELIEF IS SEEN FROM WARM WEATHER

Pretty Atlanta Girls Will Sell Pencils Today

The band of pretty girls who will sell pencils to all-comers in Atlanta Thursday in the big "Pencil Day" for the benefit of the Atlanta Child's Home has given warning to every one that the first person who says he does not use a pencil but uses a fountain pen or a typewriter instead will be required to forfeit the aforesaid fountain pen or typewriter to the cause.

Many prominent women of the city will take part in the drive, as will hundreds of girls including the Girl Scouts, which is aimed to relieve the financial condition of the Child's home. The home is in very straightened circumstances, stated the executive board, and it is having a very time of it trying to keep up the maintenance funds.

If relief does not come from some quarter the important work of mercy being done by the home will surely have to suffer an eclipse according to the board. It is hoped, the board states however, that "Pencil Day" will prove to be the greatest financial project ever maintained by friends of the home. It is being sponsored by the executive board.

The city will be canvassed by 25 groups, with from one to fifteen or twenty workers, under the supervision of a group chairman.

$8,100 SUIT HEARING COMES TO END TODAY

The suit before Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley instituted by Dade county against the Seymore Construction company, of Knoxville, Tenn., for the recovery of $8,100 said to be part of the contract price for a stretch of road in Dade county known as project 65, will be concluded today, attaches of the federal court announced Wednesday.

The introduction of testimony started Monday. Dade county is represented by Lamar Camp and L. A. Dean, of Rome. Attorney Roberts, of Knoxville, Tenn., and G. E. Maddox, of Rome, have been retained as counsel for the construction company.

The Dade county officials claim that project 65, which embraces 2 1-2 miles of road, was not built according to specifications, and the estimate was "$14,000 too high."

Dade county, the testimony disclosed, has paid the construction company approximately $50,000 of the contract price of $59,000. The amount involved in the case is the final payment said to be due the Seymore company.

The road which is known as the Chattanooga-Birmingham route, has been designated as a state aid highway. The construction of the project was supervised and approved by the highway department of the state of Georgia represented by J. B. Johnson, resident engineer, and A. A. Simonton, division engineer, who will testify today, it is said, for the Seymore company.

ARARAT GROTTO WILL PRESENT GREAT SHOW

All doubts regarding the showing of the Miller Brothers' shows next Monday and for the entire week, under the auspices of the Ararat Grotto, No. 64, have been dissipated by the assurance given the officers of the Grotto and Morris Miller of the Miller Brothers' shows that the railroad will move them to Atlanta next Sunday from Danville, Ky., where they are showing at present to enormous crowds.

The carnival grounds at the corner of Stewart avenue and Shelton street will present next Monday night the appearance of another White City of Chicago, or a second edition of Coney Island. Illuminated with thousands of multi-colored lights, bands playing, spielers working and the concessionaires telling the quality of their wares, the above statement will be in nowise an exaggeration.

The special feature will be that of Rhea's Circus Side show, which is one of the finest animal shows now playing under canvas and has an especial appeal to both the old and the young by reason of its originality, the small size of the animals employed and the further fact that it is really an exceptionally high-class performance. Included in the list of shows is that of Jazbo, a mechanical attraction, that has been attracting unusual attention from the visiting public. Another is that of the "Old Plantation" with its own orchestra and giving a performance that is meritorious and deserving of the patronage of all. Jack Oliver, who is the advance agent of the Miller Brothers' shows and one of the most efficient agents in the carnival field, has assured the members of the Grotto that the show which he represents is one of the cleanest and most moral aggregations that it has been his pleasure to represent.

Plenty of music is assured, there being two bands which will play continuously while the grounds are open. Prof. Bindi is the bandmaster and he has the reputation of being one of the most capable men in the profession.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR JOSEPH G. GAUSE

The funeral services of Joseph G. Gause, 56 years old, will be held Thursday afternoon, at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, with burial in the family lot in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Gause, who died Tuesday afternoon at the residence, 790 Peachtree street, after an illness of about four and one-half years, was a prominent business man of Atlanta, for many years connected with the George Muse Clothing company. His death occurred on the thirty-second anniversary of his marriage to Miss Sarah L. Roberts, a daughter of the late Captain E. M. Roberts, pioneer Atlanta real estate man. He came to Atlanta from Milledgeville forty years ago.

Mr. Gause was a member of the St. Mark's Methodist church, and had at one time been an officer in the old Gate City Guards.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. D. Preston Dozier, of Detroit, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Pauline Curle, of Baltimore, and a brother, William T. Gause.

Former business associates will act as pallbearers at the funeral. They are W. W. Orr, Harry Alexander, Howard Muse, E. S. Thompson, C. P. Pitchford and Robert R. Wood.

CHAMBER MAKES PLANS FOR FORESTRY BILL

The drafting of a forestry bill to be presented at the next session of the state legislature was proposed Wednesday at the executive meeting of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

W. P. Lennon, secretary of the chamber, has been assured of the cooperation of state and city school authorities who favor more extensive programs on Arbor day.

Efforts will be made to bring the state's forestry problem to the attention of the people through the activities of the Boy Scouts. The chamber's executives outlined a plan that would make every scout, scout master and executive "a spreader of the gospel of forestry."

An exhibit in the form of a relief map of the state showing the devastated timber areas will be made at the Southeastern fair.

Three Are Dead, Two Wounded In Texas Shooting

Houston, Texas, September 6.—A spectacular shooting in which three were killed, one was dangerously shot and another seriously stabbed, occurred Tuesday night at the town of Sealy, Austin county, Texas.

A feud between two families, the cause being politics, is said to have precipitated the dealiest pistol battle Texas has known in many years. The feud was fought out on the main street of the town.

The dead: Fritz Schaffner, his son, Robert, and Luther Bell. The Schaffner's are from Sealy, the Bells from Bellville.

The wounded are: Ernest Schaffner, son of Fritz Schaffner, stabbed in body, expected to live; Thomas Bell, brother of Luther Bell, shot in body, expected to die.

Both families are prominent. Schaffner was a well-to-do real estate agent at Sealy.

Great excitement is reported from both towns.

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Popular-Priced Cord Tire Without a Rival

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord Tire is built with genuine high-grade long-staple cotton as a foundation.

It is liberally oversize—the 4½-inch tire, for example, measuring nearly 5 inches.

The deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern of its tread affords excellent traction even in snow and mud, engaging the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

This new tire is a genuine Goodyear through and through—in design, in material, in construction.

It costs less to buy than the net price you are asked to pay for many "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value.

Why be satisfied with less than this efficient tire can give—why take a chance on an unknown make?

Compare these prices with NET prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires

CHECKS AT PAR.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, with executive offices in Washington, has just conducted a referendum through the 1,400 business organizations affiliated with that institution, on the question, whether the collection of checks by banks at par should be made a universal practice throughout the country.

The par-clearance problem has been an issue among banks and the larger bank customers for a long time, many smaller banks contending for legal support of the practice of charging from one-eighth to one-tenth of one per cent in remitting to their reserve banks in payment of checks drawn upon them by depositors.

The fight went to the courts and to the United States supreme court with particular reference to members of the federal reserve system.

The latter banks without exception remit at par, as required by law; but an interesting fact brought out by the referendum is that not only are the 9,726 member banks of the reserve system thus remitting, but of a total of 20,724 non-member banks 18,792 of them are now remitting at par, while only 1,932 continue the exchange charge.

It will thus be seen that par-clearances are rapidly becoming universal anyway, and that the movement, started a few months ago, to have the legislatures of the respective states support by acts the contention of the dwindling minority for exchange charges, will not get anywhere. Six states out of the 48 have passed such legislation, after intensive campaigns of propaganda, and then it stopped, and the tide began to run just as strong the other way.

As a result of the referendum referred to the special committee that conducted it has unanimously reported that the practice of par clearance now be made universal from an economic standpoint.

By all means this should be done.

Like the burdens of privilege and occupational taxation that are passed on to the people, so are the check exchange expenses fastened as a burden upon commerce. And the item of one-eighth or one-tenth of one per cent may sound and read as though it is a negligible quantity, and yet based upon the total items handled by reserve banks alone the gross volume of clearance expenses would be around $160,000,000 a year—a burden of magnitude assessed directly upon depositors who in the course of business must handle the checks of their customers.

Why should the practice of par clearances not be universal? The bank is a public service institution. It is permitted to prosper by turning over not only its own capital, but the capital of its customers, who place that capital on deposit by reason of the public service it renders in performing the functions granted to it in its charter. The clerical expense of handling a check is a part of the overhead essential in the conduct of its business, and in rendering the public service it agrees to render when it is thus permitted by law and charter grants to accept and loan for its own account the funds of its customers.

There is not a business of any kind that does not render public service from which it gets no direct compensation. And yet without the rendering of such service the business would fail in its obligations to the public, and fail in its general success.

Any business dealing with the public is a quasi-public service institution.

There is no business performing a free service for its customers more justified by conditions surrounding its operations than that of a bank in accepting checks of its customers without exchange charges—and certainly in making par remittances to reserve banks in payment of checks drawn upon it by depositors.

A LESSON TO OUTLAWS.

The outlaws who are wrecking railroads and attacking life as in the fiendish attempt to wreck the Royal Palm train of the Southern railway, near Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, may well read a warning lesson in recent events at Herrin, Ill., where the forces of the law seem at last to have taken charge of the situation.

In the Florida wreck Providence alone seems to have prevented an awful fatality, in which a union engineer, union fireman, union conductor and union trainmen might have been killed. The lives of all of these were endangered along with those of the passengers, many of whom were of union affiliation.

It was only by chance that scores were not killed or maimed, among them union workers who were at their posts of duty. Happily, the murderous attempt resulted in no loss of life.

This dastardly act was, it seems, committed by miscreants who are the real enemies of trade unionism, whatever may be their affiliation.

It is no wonder that organized labor resents this sort of thing and stands ready to aid the authorities of the law in apprehending and punishing those guilty of it!

Such outlaws may be successful for the time being in escaping the hand of justice, but their day of reckoning with the law is inevitable.

Reports from the scene of the Herrin, Ill., massacre of non-union coal miners, which occurred some months ago, indicate that the outlaws of that district are beginning to awaken to the fact of the existence of a power greater than their own.

"Ability of the state to indict and put in prison without bond Otis Clark, union miner, charged with the murder of C. K. McDowell, mine superintendent in the Herrin massacre," says a recent press dispatch from Marion, Ill., "has made a profound impression upon those people of 'bloody Williamson' county, who heretofore have sneered at all laws but their own."

"They are beginning to realize," the report continues—

"there is a power greater than their own, and that they are now dealing with something more formidable than a score of defenseless men. Admittedly the state has effected the most impressive move and witnesses who have feared to say a word are now inclined to tell what they know of the Herrin slaughter and other acts of terrorism extending over many years."

Following the wholesale butchery of workers filling places that had been vacated months passed during which local and state authorities demonstrated no inclination to bring those guilty of it within the range of "the whip of justice."

But suddenly and without warning a warrant was sworn out against the alleged ringleader a few days ago, and he was put under arrest and clapped into jail.

Just as the traditional worm seems to have turned in this instance it inevitably will turn sooner or later in the fortunes of all who violate the principles of constitutional government and live in contempt of the courts and the institutions of the law.

And be it said to the credit of conservative union labor throughout the country, it has no sympathy with the mob element that is thus injuring the cause in whose name it commits deeds of violence.

JUNGLE LAW.

A young boy, son of a prominent citizen of Atlanta, was set upon and beaten almost to the point of death the other day by a man 28 years of age, for no other reason than that the assailant took offense at an alleged minor breach of the unwritten traffic rules, committed, he said, by the lad.

The victim of the assault is in a hospital, suffering from a broken jawbone and may lose the sight of one eye as the result of the beating he received, and his assailant is in jail awaiting trial in the state courts on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

In municipal court the defendant admitted the assault, telling the judge that he had followed and attacked the boy because the latter, who was driving an automobile, had "violated the ethics of the road" by "cutting across" in front of his car in a traffic jam on Peachtree street.

It is fortunate that the alleged miscreant is in the hands of the law—that he is where his case can be passed upon by a jury.

Let us hope that this case will afford a demonstration of the fact that it is not safe in this community for any man to undertake to administer cave-man punishment for grievances, either real or imaginary.

If the boy had violated the laws governing traffic on the streets the injured party had his remedy in recourse to the authorities of law.

But his remedy certainly did not lie in brutal violence.

If this sort of thing is permitted to pass unnoticed by the forces of the law, the life of no citizen would be safe on the public thoroughfares of Atlanta, and it would not be long until our street traffic would be governed according to the rules of the jungle.

PRINTSHOP POTPOURRI

By Stewart F. Gelders

PAN-TOTIN' LIZA.

Dusty hedges wavin' in the evenin' breeze,
Setting sun a-kissin' tall magnolia trees,
Now comes down the driveway's grassy dew-damp loam
Liza with her dishpan, totin' of it home.

It's Liza with her dishpan,
Full of meat and bread
For hungry pickaninnies
Waitin' to be fed.

Supper dishes stacked up on the kitchen shelf,
Mist'ess on the front po'ch restin' of herself,
Who's the evenin' star a-winkin' at in back?
Liza with her dishpan shufflin' toward her shack.

Old mammy's hungry babies
Need a lot to eat
So Liza totes her dishpan
Full of bread and meat.

THE PASSING REVUE.

If the new styles look on the streets like they do in the fashion magazines, a boom may be expected in the bootleg industry.

Wood alcohol won't be feared so much when the curtains fall on the follies of 1922.

Whatever else one may say of those follies, they certainly made a man appreciate the value of his eyesight.

But the stylists bid those skirtlets to become "one with Ninevah and Tyre."

Mrs. Grundy may have forgotten that the fall of those municipalities made their inhabitants much less attractive.

But then, Mrs. Grundy may have no marriageable daughters.

The package may not affect the quality of the contents, but it does affect the demand for them; ask any salesman, or any woman.

As the critics of the confection industry say, there is too much package for the amount of sweets in a pound.

SAID MOLL TO JIM—

They want sympathy;
Come, their presents bringing,
Let me show them how to live,
Take what I have learned to give—
Give, take and go singing
With my sympathy.
You want sympathy;
Come, no presents bearing
But to give and take in kind
And the ecstacy I find
With you is the sharing
Of my sympathy.

The Turning Point in The Cotton Industry

(From "Commerce and Finance.")

It is seldom that the cotton market has presented a stronger alignment of opposing forces than exists at present in the form of factors tending temporarily to restrict demand, and those which bring into bold outline the possibility of a critical shortage in supply. Spinners at the momen' appear to be inclined to keep out of the market, although current statistics indicate no abundant reserves. They are probably encouraged in this policy by an indiffrent demand for their product and seem willing to take chances on the future. The claim is general, and therefore probably approximately correct, that it is difficult to sell goods on the basis of prevailing raw material quotations. Stocking up with raw material on the basis of 22 cents and above might mean taking a loss on yarns and cloth unless buyers for the finished article become more active.

This is a state of affairs that undoubtedly influences the immediate market position. The student of the cotton situation and its future possibilities will be inclined to look further ahead and consider the status of the southern grower and the return that is his portion on the same basis—22 cents. Let it be understood that the writer has no illusions concerning the immediate market effect of the inability of the cotton grower to obtain a price that will compensate him for his effort or give him a new dollar for his old dollar of investment and services throughout a trying crop season.

The time is coming, however, when the changed conditions of cotton culture and thei bearing on the fortunes of the procucer will have their repercussion in the supply of cotton available for the spindles and looms of the world.

There is no doubt that the agricultural gamble was undertaken this year with a grim determination to win. Weather conditions may have been unusually adverse. But even if they had been better it is doubtful if the production per acre would have been sufficient to make the enterprise more than the rankest hazard with the elements.

From an academic standpoint, the solution of the problem appears to be threefold First, something that seems dubious at the outset, consuming manufacturers, and the ultimate consumer as well, must make up their minds to give the cotton grower a return that will be fully compensatory for his risk, investment and services. Second, and a development that appears likely, the abandonment of cotton culture on a general scale east of the Mississippi river, and a concentration of effort in Texas and Oklahoma, thus limiting the area devoted to cotton and putting prices on a permanently higher plane. Third, the development of new sources of cotton supply in Africa, Mesopotamia, Brazil, Argentine and elsewhere, a tedious process extending over a generation before any appreciable increase will be brought about.

It may be a hasty assumption, but it does look as if this season had marked a crisis in the history of cotton culture in the United States, and that an entirely changed view must be taken of the price situation.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

IT SHALL BE DONE.

I know of a man whose favorite phrase, when a request was made of him, was: "It shall be done."

And it was usually done, too. His mind and make-up were schooled toward getting things done.

Your accomplishments take upon themselves a color—the color of you thoughts!

The very first process in getting things done is to think that you can do them. The next step is to put legs and arms and eyes and fingers to work to back this thought of yours.

The inspiring figures of the world are those who believe that the thing they want done can be done. Then they say to themselves: It shall be done.

Lieutenant Rowan, who took the message to Garcia, merely listened to instructions, saluted and then delivered the message. He didn't ask where he might find General Garcia, or whether it would be a long journey or one filled with difficulties or dangers. He didn't ask for "expense money" or an "advance in salary." He said nothing of the sort. But in his heart he told himself that it should be done. And it was!

Only the other day, the congress of the United States rewarded this brave officer, with a promotion that he should have had years ago. But this is in line with history. The world's great men are not taken care of very well—until they are no more in flesh and blood.

Men's honors, however, are of little moment, whereas the living satisfaction of service well performed is a well of water springing up through the walls of one's heart to keep one's spirit fresh and vital so long as he shall breathe.

I like the spirit in a boy's camp which I am in the habit of visiting. The "chief" asks a boy to do a certain thing. There is no questioning. The boy simply replies "Check"—and then goes and does the thing he is told to do.

And he takes particular pride in being asked to render this service.

The next time you are asked to do anything, do not question, do not whine, do not back-step—but in your heart, at least, reply: It shall be done!

And Vardaman Gets the Air!

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

No primary election news of the hour is more generally heartening than that James K. Vardaman, of Mississippi, has been defeated for the democratic nomination for the United States senate to succeed John Sharp Williams, who is retiring. The primary of Tuesday was a run-off between Vardaman and ex-Representative Hubert D. Stephens, the first primary three weeks ago having resulted in the elimination of the third candidate, a woman, and a substantial lead for Vardaman.

It looked, therefore, that the ex-senator, who was roundly repudiated in 1918 for his record as an obstructionist and administration knocker in the war congress, might score a comeback.

Evidently the conservative, upstanding democracy of Mississippi made a quick appraisement of the situation, and went to the bat with a zip—

For the returns indicate that Stephens has not only overcome the Vardaman lead in the first race by capturing the entire vote given the third candidate, but that he has snatched several thousand votes that actually went for Vardaman in the first race.

This is frequently the result when a conservative element does get stirred up and begins to ride under whip and spur.

In the first race the far-reaching result of the usual Vardaman method of appealing to prejudices, and in arraying the rural against the urban people—cheap, clap-trap demagogy—was not fully comprehended and discounted. Seeing, however, the danger that threatened, and with a fighting spirit that even the even-going people of Mississippi can arouse the loyalty that swept Vardaman out in 1918 asserted itself with an aroused force, and—

Skiddoo, Vardaman! And, again!

* * * * *

It is well, for there were no figures in the 65th congress that did more to hamstring the administration in its war policies, vindicated as they were by every act then and after, not only by the victory of the army on the battlefield, but by the victory of the army at home—the army in every channel that kept the fires burning—than the little group of senators who fretted and fumed and cussed and snorted at everything that President Wilson did or suggested; and who, to that extent, indirectly aided and abetted the enemies of this country.

Among them, small though the group, Vardaman was a leader. He voted against the declaration, and even against the resolution of neutrality.

There was not an issue of magnitude arising in the senate in those trying hours—hours in which party lines had been sacrificed to the honor and glory of America, and the Stars and Stripes, that Vardaman, in his supreme hatred for President Wilson, spurred by his inordinate conceit, did not resort to methods of obstruction and nagging.

Mississippians, aye all southerners, hung their heads in shame and disgust as they watched his antics, and the antics of the little coterie about him, when the souls of more than a hundred million American people were literally fired by loyalty, and a responsibility of obligation to country.

Yes, thank God for the defeat of Vardaman!

* * * * *

In Hubert Stephens Mississippi will have a representative in the senate who will measure up to every requirement as a progressive, upright, loyal, consistent, fair and honest statesman. He is not as brilliant as John Sharp Williams, who became a national character more than a quarter of a century ago. He is not the orator that Williams was in his palmy days. He is not the historian, the wit, the satirist, the steel-nerved antagonist—

But he is just the same sort of dependable democrat that Williams is—a man of earnest faith, plodding ability, tireless energy—

And he hates demagogy as the devil hates holy water.

WAYCROSS SHOPMEN RELEASED ON BOND

Waycross, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—Six of the ten men arrested under federal warrants issued on last Saturday have been released under $2,000 bond each. Four negroes arrested at the same time still are in jail and will be carried to Valdosta for a hearing. The six men released are white.

Aaron Kravitch, of Savannah, attorney for the Georgia Federation of Labor, who was in Waycross Monday stated that he would return later in the week and prepare the defense for the opening hearing of the cases in the United States courts.

District Attorney John W. Benstated that he was prepared to vigorously prosecute all violators of the federal court injunction, or any party who attempted to interfere with the transportation of mail, or interstate commerce.

Clinic Benefit.

Valdosta, Ga., Sept. 6.—(Special.) Under an arrangement just completed with the management of the Strand and Rex theaters in this city the free clinic, maintained by the county in Valdosta, will have charge of both these theaters, and all profits from the two houses will go to the clinic. Under this arrangement the internal revenue department made a concession regarding the remittance of the war taxes.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

NORMAL NUTRITION.

Just what we doctors mean when we say a child or adult is "poorly nourished" or "well nourished," or that the child or adult has malnutrition or normal nutrition, I reckon we don't know exactly. I used to think I knew what I meant by such expressions, but I begin to fear I only thought I knew.

A child may weigh up to the arbitrary weight fixed for his or her age and height, yet be suffering from malnutrition or from actual disease. Unfortunately the little tin advisers in whose hands we have placed far too much of the care of school children have been encouraged in this very error. Many a school child pronounced "well nourished" by a school nurse—laboring, poor girl, under the regulations of red tape—is actually in need of medical treatment or hygienic care. On the other hand, many a school child who happens to be of the spare make up and hence a few pounds shy of the arbitrary weights, made and provided by the powers that create them has been declared "undernourished" or "malnourished" and consigned to the deficient class and maybe gratuitously fed up with milk and soup at school, or sent home to a frightened mother with advice to consult a physician at once—only to pay the doctor a good fee for a good laugh.

And, alas, this tin doctoring that is being so extensively practiced on our school children these days doesn't stop here. According to Drs. Blauner and Orgel, child specialists connected with Lebanon hospital and dispensary in New York city, about a hundred children a week are sent to the dispensary by school nurses for removal of tonsils, children who are otherwise in good health and most of whom have never suffered an illness involving tonsillar and adenoid tissue. It seems the school nurses inform the mothers that the tonsils and adenoids must be removed or the child will be excluded from school, and the only basis for such diagnosis being the fact that the child's tonsils are visible to the doctor's eye. Of course, the poor girls mean well—they are doing precisely what their superiors teach them to do. But it all goes to show how absurd it is for the grand old public to cling to the illusion that medical service can be purchased for a chauffeur's pay.

Something besides the age, height, weight standard must be employed in the determination of the state of nutrition. We doctors have deceived ourselves and the public too loug about that. In order to determine that an individual is well nourished we must consider the general balance and substance of the body, the status or carriage or posture, the firmness of the tissues, the development of the muscular system, the alertness of nerve muscle responses, and in fact the functional activity generally. This is not a job for a tin doctor, even the many boards of education and some health departments appear to think the school child needs nothing better.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Complication of Diseases.

I want a complete, effective cure for bedbugs. State more than one cure if you can.—(E. M.)

Answer—The best thing I can suggest is fumigation of the infested apartment or apartments with hydrocyanic gas, which of course requires the services of a professional fumigator, for the gas is a deadly poison to human beings. If fumigation is impossible squirt into every crack and crevice where the pests may hide a powerful insecticide solution, such as equal parts of 5 per cent carbonic acid solution and one in five hundred corrosive sublimate solution. Of course these are poisonous too and must never be left or kept in the house, but all used up at one time. Some householders find that by a thorough application of kerosene and gasoline (equal parts) in the cracks and crevices about beds walls and closets they can eradicate bedbugs. The precaution necessary when using kerosene and gasoline is to avoid flame or fire.

Cholecystitis.

Please send me the diet and exercises for one with cholecystitis.—(Mrs. F. D. T.)

Answer.—I know of no diet or exercises which would be advisable for one with gall sac inflammation unless under the direction of the attending physician.

Hernia.

Can you recommend a hospital or a doctor who makes a specialty of curing umbilical hernia? Or is there a cure? I am 53 years old and this hernia appeared first about eight months ago.—(M. J. H.)

Answer.—I know of no such hospital or physician. There is no cure for hernia in an adult except operation. Your age is no bar to operation, if the hernia handicaps you.

Ben Told at Work.

I always supposed it was good to drink plenty of cool water, but lately I have been told one should never drink more than three-fourths of a glass at a time. Is that correct?—(Miss C. F.)

Answer.—No. Drink all your thrist calls for at one time, whether one glassful or four.

CHARTER AMENDMENTS WILL BE CONSIDERED

Proposed amendments to the charter of the city of College Park, which were passed by the legislature at its recent session, will be discussed at a mass meeting of citizens of that place to be held at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Temple Avenue school, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Bayard Willingham. The amendments are to be submitted to the voters for ratification or rejection in an election to be held September 30.

Under the amendments changes will be provided in the selection of members of the College Park school board. At present the members are nominated by the board itself and submitted to council for approval. The amendments provide that the members of the board be selected by the people. It is also provided that present members of the board resign their positions January 1, 1923.

REAL ESTATE BOARD WILL MEET THURSDAY

The regular weekly luncheons of the Atlanta Real Estate board will be resumed Thursday, according to announcement by President G. Ward Wight. The board meets at the Peacock cafe at 1 o'clock. Several weeks ago the luncheons were abandoned, but the board is now prepared to begin its fall activities.

COCHRAN ANNOUNCES DATES FOR SPEECHES

Ralph O. Cochran Tuesday announced the following speaking dates:

Thursday, at 3 o'clock he will address the voters of DeKalk county at the court house in Decatur. Friday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, he will speak at Palmetto. Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, he will address the voters of Stone Mountain, and at 4:30, he will address the voters of Lithonia. On Monday afternoon or Monday night, he will speak in Atlanta, the place and hour to be announced later.

BITS OF LONDON LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

London, September 6.—The London residential sections are far more beautiful and home-like than those of New York. To me they are the most appealing thing about the interesting city. The weather here brings out beautiful flowers and every window is lined with them.

There are no jangling street noises. There is a dignity and privacy about the London home which makes the stranger believe truly that a man's home is his castle. Out along Mayfair and the Mall the homes are not boarded up as they are on Park and Fifth avenues.

Cretonne curtains are hung over the entrances, which indicates the occupants are away, but there is no lifeless, chilly look. A new home in London is not desirable. People prefer the old mansions 100 and 200 years old in some instances.

All the doors have the big brass knockers—freshly shined each day, just as the steps are always fresh scrubbed. In the late afternoon in the better sections the fine old walks are crowded with families going to the homes of friends for tea.

Father wears his high hat and frock coat, the sons their Eton jackets and flaring collars, and mothers and daughters wear smart afternoon frocks. It is a phase of social life that seems to me to have entirely disappeared in the larger American cities.

The only disagreeable feature of the London apartments are the endless mews which catacomb the rear and in which live the shiftless and unkempt.

The various railroad depots—Charing Cross, Waterloo, Paddington and Victoria—are beehives of activity. The bank holidays are on and London is on vacation. A sensible plan is followed at the stations, where platform tickets are issued for a penny fare from slot machines. The ticket permits the holder to pass the gates. Also there are innumerable "Brush Up Stations," where one may wash and be brushed off for a three pence.

One of the busiest cigar stores in London is on the Strand, and it deals exclusively in American-made cigarettes at almost double the prices back home. It has a messenger service and the patron is promised that his cigarettes will reach his stopping place before he arrives.

One of the pathetic figures in London to me is Arlie Latham, the old baseball star and coach. He has the hat-checking privilege in a London cafe, and is doing well, but London does not know the glory that once was his. He longs for old-time friends and the hoarse shouts from the bleachers. Latham stopped off here with a yankee ball club on a world tour four years ago and has been here since.

Reading through a London telephone directory I find instructions to users on each page. One instruction reads: "Don't shout 'Hallo' at the operator." It was my impression that Britishers answered the phone with "Are you there." All I have heard answer with the good old American "Hello." And the operators—telephonists, they call them—respond with the same salutation. The telephone service is excellent.

In the Court Calendar today I noticed that Lady Inchfinch was on the royal yacht at Cowes for tea. It is probably lese majeste, but she's got a name that would be good for a giggle in any burlesqu show.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS

"A jest's prosperity," said Shakespeare, "lies in the ear that hears it." It is upon that principle that your favorite joke or group of jokes is being sought by this department. Tell it to us and we will tell it to the world: that is, if it is deserving of retelling. Tell it to us and, if we publish it, you will be given a couple of tickets to the Howard theater, where you will see Pithy Paragraphs on the screen. Tell it to us, and if it is good enough to be included in this film you will have the additional pleasure of receiving an award of $5.

Please don't let this offer drive you to any joke book, magazine of fun, or any other source of pre-digested humor. We prefer the homely sort of thing which tickles you and your friends, something which rises out of your experience, or your own wit, your own observation. And we want your Pithy Paragraph. The address is the Pithy Paragraph Editor, Constitution.

Today's winners are Mrs. H. C. Carroll and L. K. Culbertson.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S LAMENT.

'Tis the voice of the Housewife—
I hear her complain:
"Cook has left without warning, and
I've searched all in vain.
Through the confines of Tennille,
From Strangetown to Scuff,
But no 'colored lady' whether black, brown or buff
Will be Queen of my kitchen for glory or gain,—
Though I've searched near and far 'till I've addled my brain,
Many have promised but all have forgotten,
For the Queens of the kitchen
Now bend to King Cotton."
—MRS. H. C. CARROLL.

The film reeled on before a breathless audience. The courtly hero pressed his lips to the lady's hand in a passionate kiss of renunciation and farewell. Suddenly, little Fred's voice rose above the soft music—"Mother! What makes him smell her hand?"
—L. K. CULBERTSON.

A TIMELY JINGLE.

Politics is in the saddle,
Riding through this town of ours,
Spurring with both heels,—astraddle,
Day and night till wee small hours.

Surely you have seen him, fellows,
Going down the line alope,
Speaking with a voice he mellows,
As he spurts his subtile dope.

There are many jockeys mounted,
As the entrance fees reveal;
And (their word) they may be counted
Safely for the public weal.

Now they're off; the gong has sounded;
See the dust-clouds o'er them roll;
We have heard their gifts expounded,
May the best ones win the goal.
—V. O. RANKIN.

Mrs. X. was entertaining her bridge club and when refreshment time came she found that her small daughter persisted in hanging around. In vain she gave her sharp looks. As she was about to hand a guest a plate of salad, she noticed a bug on it. Glancing around quickly to see that no one was looking, she smashed it under her foot.

"Mo—ther!" came a reproving voice drawing all eyes, "that bug might have some little babies at home."

A SOLILOQUY.

Broke, broke, broke,
The worst that a felier can be
Can't even mail, or express
The thoughts that arise in me.

Break, break, break
It gently to creditors all;
I haven't the o of a $—
To pay my bills this fall.

The Sunday school teacher was trying to drive home to her class of small boys the necessity of always "asking a blessing" before partaking of a meal.

Turning to the minister's son she asked: "Buford, what is the first thing your father says when he sits down to a meal?"

Buford's quick reply was: "Cut butter light, kids; it's 75 cents a pound."

Fuller the ripples flow,
Subtly revealing so,

A little girl, who lived in the city, went to visit her grandmother, who lived in the country. While roaming about the grounds one day she chanced upon a fine peacock and excitedly called:

"Oh, grandmother! run here; your chicken's in bloom!"

THE PARTING SHOT.

So you're going to another woman,
Forsaking our little nook?
Good-bye! May you be happy;
But, say, you're a darned poor cook!

In the good old days when you heard a neighbor beating his wife you went over to interfere. Now you go over for his recipe.

THE TEAHOUND SPEAKS.

How dare you call my darling flapper
"Inane," "absurd," "no brains" and "dapper?"
I swear by my initialed "hanky"
That she is not the least bit cranky.
Old dear, you have her wrong, you know,
I can't see how you pan her so.
Why, get this straight—and listen, now,
My flapper, she's the cat's meow.

Deacon Hardy sez: "The best proof that advahtisin' brings results is the fac' that folks who fin's lost valuables don't."
O. F. REEVES.

CONSOLATION.

All yesterday I was sixteen,
And happy as the highest queen;
I danced and sang and fluttered on,
My heart was filled with golden song;
But seventeen I am today—
No longer am I glad or gay.
I'm older when each day is thru,
But, ah! there's hope, for so are you!

Eleven of the best known military men in Atlanta will judge the prize drill tonight of the members of Company F, the newly designated "Gate City Guard" military unit. The drill will be given at the city Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock. The prize is a gold medal, given by the Holzman Jewelry company. The drills are held quarterly and the medal will be the permanent property of any man who wins it three times in succession.

Captain Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., commander of the new Gate City Guards, will direct the affair.

The judges will be Col. W. R. Dashiell, chief of staff of the Fourth Army corps, who served through the world war as a brigadier general; Col. A. E. Williams, adjutant of the Fourth Army corps; Lieutenant Colonel Ed H. FOUR GIRLS' SCHOOL TRUSTEES RENAMED

Reappointment of four members of the board of trustees of the Georgia Training School for Girls was announced Wednesday at the office of Governor Thomas W. Hardwick by Julian McCurry, secretary to the governor. The four trustees named were Wilmer L. Moore, Sr., Atlanta; Mrs. Thomas H. Latham, Atlanta; Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, Madison, and William H. Davis, Waynesboro.

HARDWICK CALLS K. K. K. CHIEF FOES

Athens, Ga., September 6.—(Special.) — Governor Hardwick spoke here Wednesday night, in the interest of his candidacy for re-election.

In referring to Clifford Walker, the governor declared the former is making his race for governor without telling to people where he stands on the foremost issues of the campaign. He made his usual references to Senator Watson, declaring he will "be bossed by no man."

Danielsville, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—The Ku Klux Klan and organized labor are the chief opposition in his second gubernatorial race, Governor Hardwick told Madison voters in his address at the courthouse today.

"This element opposes me because I have upheld the law with a firm hand," Hardwick said. "My opponent, Mr. Walker, is accepting the support of this radical element which believes that he would wield a weak hand as governor. The people of Georgia are entitled to know whether or not he would use all the means in his power to enforce the law. If he is going to represent the radical and restless elements, as his silence and his acceptance of their support leads them to expect, the people of Georgia who believe in law and order should vote solidly for me.

"The silence of Mr. Walker on the law and order issue is strange and ominous indeed. It is only the radical and red element in the klan and in labor circles that oppose me. How things have changed in the last two years. In 1920 Cliff Walker ran all over the state, denouncing me and Senator Watson as radicals and reds and bolshevists. When I proved by my administration that I was none of these things he turned right around and is now seeking the support of this dangerous element to which he had accused me of belonging.

"If he would represent these people as governor he should receive the support of these elements alone, and the law-abiding voters should support me."

For probably the first time in the history of Georgia politics that a woman has introduced a candidate for governor, Hardwick was presented to the voters today by Miss Sallie Fannie Daniel, daughter of Dr. J. S. Daniel, of Danielsville.

The governor was accompanied to this place by Colonel H. C. Tuck, T. W. Rucker, Henry F. West and Harry Rhodes, who joined the party at Athens. The reception committee that greeted Hardwick at the hotel here was composed of Senator L. C. Brown, Solicitor-General A. S. Skelton, of Hartwell; J. H. Hendy, C. C. Whitworth, G. W. Dean, J. N. B. Thompson, J. V. Stephens, J. T. Gholston, all of Madison county; J. H. McWhorter, G. W. David, B. L. David and Ben Smith, of Comer; W. F. Schell, of Atlanta; J. M. Hughes and Robert Davis, of Athens; Dorsey Davis, of Danielsville; A. C. Carson, of Franklin county, and G. M. Carithers, of Clarke county.

First U. S. War Victory To Be Celebrated Here

BY ROBERT G. STEPHENS,
Commander Coleman Post American Legion.

The fourth anniversary of the conclusion of the victorious drive by General Pershing's first American army, which wiped out the Great German salient at St. Mihiel, France, is to be fittingly celebrated in Atlanta on September 16, according to plans of the regular army and the American Legion.

Those who participate in that memoriable offensive can never forget—from the moment precisely at 3 a. m. in the morning of September 12, 1918, when at Pershing's command the heavy guns opened up all along the line, roaring out the definance of American to the forces of autocracy, and hurling death and destruction against this stronghold of the kaiser—to the gray dawn when tl waiting doughboys "jumped off" under the protective barrage of the American guns and "went over the top."

For four days and nights the American forces pressed forward amidst terrific fighting, both on the ground and in the heavens, where the thunder of modern warfare was echoed by the fighting airplanes. Finally on September 16, the American lines were established, and the dangerous St. Mihiel salient, which menaced the whole allied cause, had been completely wiped out. Victory crowned our efforts. Many of our brave boys had paid the supreme sacrifice—and once more American fighting men had covered themselves with glory and undying fame which has aroused the admiration of the world.

Major General David C. Shanks, the commanding general of the fourth corps area of the United States army, is well and favorably known in Atlanta, and when General Shanks learned of the plans of the American Legion to celebrate the great American victory at St. Mihiel, he offered the use of the veteran forces under his command in staging a tremendous military display simulating the actual fighting which took place at St. Mihiel. For this purpose selected troops of the veteran 22d infantry will be used, many of whom, both officers and men, actually participated in the fighting at St. Mihiel.

The display will be complete from the artillery barrage from the famous French "75" field pieces, to the machine gun nests which the storming troops will charge. Rockets, flares, and all the pyrotechnics of modern warfare will be used. It promises to be the greatest military display ever witnessed here since the battle of Atlanta during the civil war. Regular army staff officers have selected Lakewood for this display because the terrain offers the most suitable stage for the display, which is readily accessible to the citizens of Atlanta. It promises to be a real honest-to-goodness scrap which no Atlantan should miss.

In addition to the great military display the American Legion has arranged a program of events which alone excels anything yet offered to the citizens of Atlanta. The celebration will start at 2 p. m., on Saturday, September 16, and will last until 11 p. m., that night. There will be matched automobile races by daredevil racers—the winner taking the entire purse. Besides a horse show, exhibition stunts, trotting and running races participated in by headquarters troop of the Georgia national guard, together with most of the Atlanta horse men, and some of Atlanta's lovely equestriennes.

Walter Candler, of Lullwater stables, has promised the legion that he will put his best horses on the Lakewood track for these events. There will be music by military bands both of the regular army and national guard and directly after the great military display the legion will stage a complete program of bouts by well-known pugilists. Those who have witnessed the legion boxing contests (we are not allowed to say prize fights) know what this means.

Major Pendleton, commandant of Georgia Tech, and Major Washington, of the Tech military department, have offered the legion the use of the military equipment at Georgia Tech in assisting in the celebration.

For the purpose of defraying necessary expenses incident to the great celebration it will be necessary to charge a small admission to the celebration. The legion has fixed this at 50 cents, the very minimum figure, in order to insure that every man, woman, and child in Atlanta will be able to witness this great display. No tickets will be sold at more than 50 cents for admission to the gates at Lakewood.

The various women's organizations in Atlanta have offered their assistance to the legion, and the tickets will be placed on sale by them beginning next Monday, September 11, and continuing throughout Tuesday, September 12. In addition tickets will be sold at the gates at Lakewood. If any balance remains after expenses are met it will be turned over to the American Legion to help meet expenses for the national convention at New Orleans, in October. All the legion posts in Atlanta are actively working to make September 16 a day long to be remembered in Atlanta, and no true American should miss this great celebration.

Macon, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—C. J. Flynn, manager for a local tea and coffee store, was fined $85 and sentenced to two days in jail, today when he faced Recorder Hunter charged with two counts of speeding, violating the muffler ordinance and with contempt of court. After serving a half day of the sentence he was released by order of the chief of police.

Flynn was arrested some time ago and failed to appear in court when told to do so. Later he was arrested on another charge and again failed to appear. Later he was taken in custody and lodged in jail to assure his appearance.

LIONS WILL GIVE AID TO WORTHY CHARITY

At the business meeting of the Lions club at the dining hall of the chamber of commerce Wednesday at noon the pending business of the club was cleared up in short order. The club was found to be on the best footing it has been since its organization and the program for the next few meetings was outlined.

Next Wednesday will be given over to a debate on the query, "Resolved, That the works of nature are greater and grander than the arts of man." The affirmative will be upheld by Joe Wolfe, J. C. Gavan and Robert McCord, while the negative will receive the support of Sam Talley, J. V. Freitag and Dr. H. E. Stockbridge.

Press Huddleston, who is Lion tamer of the order, was called on to report on the failure of the official tail twister to properly perform his duty in checking up on late Lions. It developed that the tail twister was late himself and could not report.

Mr. Huddleston made a suggestion that the club begin looking around for some worthy cause to which it can lend its support. He suggested that a committee be appointed to arrange for supplying a radio outfit for the inmates of the Old Ladies' home. The executive committee will meet next Monday at 12:30 o'clock at Lions headquarters, it was announced.

BYFIELDS TELL OF CANDLER INCIDENT

There were young men and old women and girls and old men. They never let us alone day or night, and wherever we'd go or turn, they would turn up."

"Neither one of us had ever experienced anything like that before" said Byfield, taking up the narrative, "and of course this whole thing has been one new experience after another, and each one seems worse than the one before."

"The hardest thing, I've experienced, though, has been to reconcile myself to the attitude of my friends. That hurts—hurts like everything. You see, lots of them have been to me, assured me of their confidence and their sympathy, and have tendered me their services in this trouble. And still, with m..hty few exceptions, I can see and feel a difference.

"Some of my best friends don't like to be seen around with me. I know that they figure that it will hurt them in a business way or a social way on account of all this talk.

"I don't blame them. Not a bit. I can understand perfectly that though they have confidence in us, they know that may be other people have not, and they accordingly. But it's hard, pretty hard, when fellow has tried to do the square and honorable thing, not only by himself, but to everybody else involved.

"Succeeds in Business."

"I've tried as hard as any man could to make something of myself," he continued. "It may sound boyish, but my ambition has always been to be a man in whom my father could take a just pride. I haven't been a saint and neither have I been more of a sinner than most people. I have done pretty well in business, extremely well, when you consider the fact that I entered the automobile business in Atlanta when all of Automobile row was dead. I have been my own salesman and service man and executive and I've had to see midnight in this office many a time to do it.

"But up to the time that this thing came up, I had more than made the grade. I had made a success of my business wher other men had failed. I hadn't laid by much, for I am young and my wife is young and we both enjoyed a good time.

"By that I don't mean to say that we have been leading any wild or giddy life. I rarely take a drink. Mrs. Byfield never thinks of touching anything alcoholic. The only time, I believe, I ever saw her touch a drop of anything was that last night on th boat when she had a glass of champagne, but so did Candler's children, for that matter.

"Nobody Helped Me."

"But we liked good clothes and good shows and good things to eat and fun in general, and we've pretty well lived up to what me made. Still I had the satisfaction of knowing that I had made a business success all by myself, for nobody helped me.

"It makes me mad when I hear reports that Walter Candler set me up in business. I had finished the first and hardest year of business for myself before I knew Walter Candler. It's true that I've borrowed money at his bank. Lots of people have done that that Candler isn't interested in to the slightest degree.

"But all sorts of malicious stories are told about us. For instance, there's one that Candler gave Mrs. Byfield a fur coat. That's a malicious lie. Her fur coat was traded in to me for a $450 payment on an automobile. I had a perfect right to make such a trade and I had a perfect right to give the coat to my wife. Candler, by the way, didn't even figure in the trade.

"I guess though that all these things are to be expected. When the ladies gather around bridge tables and when the men congregate at clubs, they have to have something to talk about, and under the circumstances, I guess, it's bound to be us.

Beats Candler.

"And yet I don't see how I have acted in any way that was not strictly honorable. When I found Candler, I did what any other man would have done. I beat him and continued to beat him until I was pulled off.

"Then before I could think coherently, I was in a strange city in a strange country. I didn't have a friend that I knew of in France. I couldn't even order a meal unless I sat in a restaurant, watched somebody else order and then point to it to let a waiter know I wanted the same thing.

"In the meantime this terrible story had come out—in the The London Times, I believe—and Candler came to me through emissaries with his abject and complete apologies. Finally, after I had been unable to communicate with Atlanta by cable, I consented to meet him.

"His apologies were still abject and complete, and then he told me he wanted, as far as it was in his power, to right the wrong he had done. He explained that he knew that the publication of that story would do me incalculable harm in a business way. That's the truth and it has proven so. He further said that he knew we would suffer untold embarrassments and it was all his fault.

"Proposes Settlement."

"Insisting that he only wanted to do as much as he could to atone for his actions, he proposed this monetary settlement. I realized that I'd have a hard row to travel when I got back to Atlanta, financially I didn't want my wife to suffer any more than she had and would inevitably. Candler had apologized. He had tendered this offer, as I thought, in the best of faith And I did what I believe any man would have done under the same circumstances. I accepted his proposition.

"When all the details of this affair are brought out in open court, I believe that we will be fully restored to the confidence of Atlanta In the meantime, we know ou own consciences are clear. In that knowledge we feel that we can face all the trials that have been forced on us."

Byfield has returned to business, though, he says, his recent experiences have left him practically on the verge of a nervous collapse. He looks it, too.

Mrs. Byfield is keeping close to her apartment on North Boulevard. "I go out sometimes at night," she says, "to see some very close friends. We don't want to embarrass anyone."

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Quest of Alistair

BY ROBERT ALLISON HOOD

Next Week, "The Sheridan Road Mystery"
By Paul and Mabel Thorne

Alistair explained Stubbs' offer in detail and the lawyer was deeply interested. "If you think that this man, Stubbs," he said, "is all right, you can wire him that you accept his offer and I can have the money here by cable in a couple of days or so. I'll give you half the profits over 4 per cent on my money. How'll that suit you?"

"It's far too generous," said Alistair. "You don't need to give me any of the profits. You are taking all the risk and for all I know, there may be considerable."

"Well, if I lose on this I'll just be square of the game. Now, let us go in to the young lady, for I am dying to see what she is like after what you have told me."

At Sicamous Durie sent Alistair to dispatch the telegram to Stubbs, and in spite of the young man's warning that he had better be cautious, he insisted on its being done, saying he felt sure that it was a good thing. While he was away he had a chance for a talk with Lorraine alone; and when she found out that he had come to join Mr. Kilgour, she invited him to visit them at Inshallah and take up his quarters there. The lawyer accepted with alacrity, but said that he would travel to Kamloops with his friend and come out with him the next day. He was aware oif the arrangement they had made and thought it was a wise one.

It was half past 10 when the train arrived at Garston and their farewell was of the briefest and most perfunctory. Alistair followed Lorraine out on the platform at the end of the car and saw her descend and walk quietly off towards the hotel. Two men boarded the train. They were Lancaster, the dealer whom he had seen at the fair with Stubbs, and Du Bois, the brand inspector. The conductor had just lifted his lantern as a signal to the engineer to start when a small flying figure appeared suddenly from the other direction. It was Herb. "Mr. Kilgour! Mr. Kilgour!" he cried as he recognized Alistair's head leaning out. "Quick, come down, come down: something terrible has happened. Layburn's sold all the Inshallah cattle."

Alistair, grasping in a flash the meaning of his words, jumped lightly down. Meanwhile the long train moved slowly out bearing Mr. Durie, all unconscious as yet of his companion's desertion. It was not long, in spite of the boy's excitement and the incoherence at times of his tale, before Alistair had learned all he had to tell him.

Herb had seen Layburn and his riders on the road with the cattle. To his sharp boyish wits, it seemed strange that as soon as Alistair and Lorraine were out of the way, the stock should be rounded up and taken off the range at this season of the year. It could be for nothing else but to sell them, he reasoned, and he determined to see all that could be seen of what went on. He followed them all the way and was near by when Layburn shook hands with the cattle dealer and the brand inspector. The cattle were corralled and counted with the greatest haste. There were about 400, all told, and mixed in with the Inshallah cattle were others that bore Layburn's own brand. Herb had seen Ted come out from the hotel and Layburn had taken him inside and talked to him. After that Ted had stood still and watched the proceedings. The brand inspector and Mr. Lancaster, the dealer, had gone into the hotel with Layburn and Ted. The two former had just boarded the train that Alistair had left.

"You're a smart boy, Herb, and I am greatly indebted to you," said Alistair.

"Gee! I had 'most forgotten about Rout," said Herb. "Come here, Rout," and the figure of an Indian boy, a lad of 18 or thereabouts, appeared suddenly from out the darkness where he had been standing close by while they were talking. "Rout is Pete's brother. Pete, you know, is Layburn's partner up at the old Riley place. He was the Indian that got hurt yesterday in the race and he's awful bad too. Rout was lookin's after the place when Pete was away, and when he saw Layburn's men roundin' up his brother's cattle he sure knew that there was somethin' wrong. Guessed that Layburn was up to some dirty trick when Pete was sick. So he come down an' told Pete an' Pete was awful mad. Said he'd make it hot for Layburn an' he sent Rout her to tell you how they'd been stealin' Inshallah calves these last two years."

"Is that so?" said Alistair to the boy.

"That shore is right," said the lad, nodding his head. "They useter brand the Inshallah calves with their brand and no one was the wiser. When I told Pete how Layburn was double-crossing him—sellin' the calves an' all—he said he'd squeal if he went to jail for it. He allowed, though, now that his back is broke, they wouldn't trouble him. an' he thought that mebbe you or Mr. De Roche if you got the cattle money back from Layburn would give him a little bit."

"An' would he swear to this? Take his oath before a magistrate, you know?"

"Sure, he would, you bet. He'd do anything to get even with Layburn; 'n' Monte too. Monte hain't played the game neither."

Alistair pondered for a moment. Here was confirmation of what Willmot had told him that night at his shack. His decision was soon taken. "Herb," he said, "we'll go over to the hotel and I'll see if I can't bring these cattle rustlers to book. If you are not afraid I would like you to be on hand outside, but you must not come in. I might want you later to go on an errand."

"Let me come, too," said the Indian lad.

"You can wait outside with Herb if you want to," said Alistair.

After alighting from the train, Lorraine walked rapidly over to the hotel. There was a light in the window of the hotel parlor as well as in the transom above the door. The proprietor's wife often sat in the parlor with her sewing and it was with the full expectation of finding her there that the girl passed through the hall, which was empty, and, opening the door, stepped boldly into the room. It was in semi-darkness, the only light being a candle, and it was not until Layburn spoke that she recognized the two men sitting on opposite sides of the center table. The other was Monte. They had been shaking dice to while away the time.

"So it's you back already, miss, is it?" Layburn said with a sneer, looking up, but not rising from his chair. He had had a long day in the saddle, and now, with the money for the cattle in his pocket, he had been relaxing for a space while waiting for the motor from Kamloops which was to take him and Monte across the boundary.

Layburn was about the last one that she wanted to see at this time. She had not before realized how strong had become her dislike to this cousin of hers, a dislike recently born but which had grown with a swiftness that astonished her. For the moment she could not find words to answer him.

"And what has become of the squire that went with you?" Layburn continued, concealing the anxiety with which he asked the question, "Did he come back too?"

"If you are referring to Mr. Kilgour, he has gone on to Kamloops tonight."

"Oh, has he? I suppose he has gone to buy a wedding ring for Amy Pelton. You know that they are engaged, don't you? She told me last night." He was lying to her and enjoying it. He felt that she winced at the news.

"No, I—she had not told me, but I am not surprised. They—they seemed to get on well together. I am glad for Amy."

"Oh, you're glad, are you? I thought that you had no use for him. It strikes me you've changed your tune pretty quick. I suppose he made love to you too, but he hadn't much regard for your character, my lady, had he? Why, the whole place is talking about the way you and he ran off together. Why"—

"I won't stay and listen to you, Olney," she said with a catch in her voice, rising quickly to escape. On a faint sign from him, however, Monte had put his back against the door. Pausing a moment in amazement, she tried to push him aside but he gripped her tightly by the arm and forced her back. Realizing the futility of her effort she desisted. Then she turned to Layburn. "What does this mean, Olney? Will you stand by and let Monte treat me this way?"

He smiled at her unpleasantly, almost a leer. The fumes of whisky taken on an empty stomach—for he had scarcely had a bite to eat all day—were having their effect, and prudence and decency were alike forgotten. "Sit down again, Lorraine, and let me explain. Monte and I, we have decided that we are not exactly meeting with the appreciation that we deserve up here—in fact, that you haven't been treating us right—and that we want to get back to the country we belong to. We're not going back empty-handed. Jus' let me show you," and he pulled from his breast pocket a large wallet and opened it to show a thick wad of bills. "See these, all 'hundreds': and more than these we have too. This is the money that your pretty Britisher came out to get, but you see we've got in ahead of him, Monte and I. You an' him came back a little too early, though, and I'm afraid, my dear, it is going to cause you a leetle just a leetle inconvenience for we shall have to take you with us, just for part of the way. It wouldn't do to leave you behind for you might split on us. The car will be here anytime now."

Lorraine's eyes were wide with consternation and, at first, speech failed her. "But, Olney," at last she burst out, "what do you mean? You aren't in earnest, surely. You wouldn't treat your own cousin this way?"

"To tell the truth, my dear, I'm not your cousin at all. I just took his name when I came up here. He died down in Montana and he told me all about his relatives up here and I thought it would be a cute trick to come up and pass myself off for him. It wouldn't do him any harm and think of the benefit I was doing to you all."

"Oh, I wish Ted was here. He wouldn't let you treat me this way."

He laughed. "Ted? Why, Ted is here. He's there on the lounge behind you, drunk as a lord and dead to the world."

She gave a cry of dismay and rushed over to the sofa where, indeed, Ted was lying sound asleep. The last drink that he had taken had been drugged, but she was not to know that.

"What have you done to him? Oh, what have you done to him?"

"Done to him? Nothing at all. He's done it to himself, hasn't he? But you needn't take on so," Olney said more mildly. "We are to take him with us—a matter of expediency—so that it will be perfectly proper. You couldn't have a better chaperon than your own brother, could you? We won't take you with us all the way, either, will we, Monte? but we'll drop you and him somewhere where it's quiet an' lonely, where you'll have a nice long walk back."

The meaning of his words was dawning upon her and for the first time she began to realize the position. "Have you really sold our cattle to get that money?" she gasped.

"Aye, verily, it is even so, miss," he replied, mocking her.

"Then Mr. Kilgour will catch you and get it back. He will never give up."

Layburn laughed sardonically. "You forget that he has gone to Kamloops?"

There was a sudden crash as the door against which Monte was still standing was thrust violently open, throwing him forward into the room, and Alistair appeared, his hand holding a revolver, the muzzle of which waved threateningly between Layburn and Monte.

CHAPTER VIII.

"I've got you both covered. Put up your hands," said Alistair. Layburn laughed harshly but he lifted his hands above the table where he was still sitting. Monte had quickly recovered his balance and would have sprung at the newcomer, but he recoiled before the threatening muzzle so close to him, and he, too, put up his hands.

"Go and call the proprietor," commanded Alistair in a quick aside to Lorraine. He was anxious to get her out of the room. The girl, after a momentary hesitation, obeyed.

"So you're here," Layburn began with a sneer, "and what's the trouble? What sort of wild west stuff is this? Turned highwayman, have you, for a change? What'll it be next, I wonder?"

"It won't be cattle-thief, anyway," said Alistair. "What do you mean by selling the Inshallah cattle? I'll trouble you to hand over the money you got for them. It's Mr. De Roche's money and not yours. So I'll take charge of it, please. Outside the door I heard what you said, so you needn't take the trouble to deny it. Besides, I know all about you and Pete stealing the Inshallah calves. Pretty serious business, that, I call it. You can put down your right hand and take out that money and lay it on the table. Better do as I say exactly now, for if you make any mistake I shall just have to shoot you, for I can't afford to take chances."

Layburn's face seemed to twitch nervously, or was it the flickering light of the candle upon the table making the shadows play over it? Cautiously he lowered his right hand and drew out his pocket-book from his breast pocket. "Bebbe you'd like me to open it and show you that the money's there," he volunteered and, opening its folds, he showed the thick wad of bills. Then, as he closed the wallet, with a sudden sweep of his arm he knocked over the candle and made a swift dive for Alistair's knees. He had stooped low but not so quickly but that the pistol rang out and a bullet struck him in the arm that had made the demonstration. His spring fell short of its object and he sank to the floor. Monte meanwhile had grappled with Alistair and had both arms around him in a viselike grip, and the two, tripping over a chair, had ballen back against the door where they swayed and wrestled grimly. The room was dark, for the candle had gone out. Monte, by a trick of which he was master, had forced the pistol from Alistair's hands so that it fell to the floor. In their fall they lay each on his side, facing one another so that at first neither had the advantage; but the cowboy had muscles of steel and was easily the stronger. Again and again, he sought to get his clutch on Alistair's throat, but the latter was able to hold him off; yet gradually he felt that his strength was giving out. Herb and the Indian boy outside were trying to open the door, but could not budge it for the bodies of the two struggling men, who fought in grim silence save for occasional gasping breaths that told of the deadliness of their fight.

Meanwhile, Layburn had rallied somewhat from the faintness caused by his wound and had managed to rise to his feet, cursing loudly from the pain. He managed to light a match and he stooped for the pistol. But his match went out. So he fumbled for another one, the window of the room was thrown up and two figures jumped in. Just then Layburn struck his second match, but it was his undoing. The two, Herb and Rout, had gone round to the window and now swooped down upon him. In a moment they had him on his back on the floor. "See to the boss," said the Indian, "I hold him now myself."

Herb turned to help Alistair, but in the dark is was difficult for him to distinguish between the two men struggling on the floor. His hands encountered a pair of shoulders, and following these they came on a face which a beard and mustache left no doubt as to its owner. Monte swore deeply as the hands closed upon his throat. Alistair, feeling his enemy's clutch weakening and that reinforcements were at hand, made a desperate effort to throw it off. The attempt succeeded, for Monte with his wind already half gone began to suffocate. In another moment Alistair had risen to his knees and had the cowboy on his back at his mercy.

Manning-Stephens Wedding Quiet Event of Wednesday

A wedding of wide social interest Wednesday evening was that of Miss Kathryn Lucile Manning to George Stephens, which took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. B. Manning, on Spring street.

The apartments were attractively decorated with palms and ferns. The improvised altar, banked with palms, held a large candelabra and several graceful baskets filled with fall flowers.

Martin Fischback acted as best man.

Little Miss Julia Chapman, niece of the bride, was the dainty flower girl and wore a ruffled dress of orchid organdie trimmed with real lace and scattered pink rosebuds from a French basket.

Price-Smith and an enthusiastic gathering of clubwomen. Pledges given by the various departments, divisions, committees, and by individuals featured the meeting and assured the success of the undertaking.

Fifteen thousand in cash and pledges has been raised to date. Thornton Marye has the plans in readiness and is a liberal contributor through his personal check given through a department of the club. Dr. M. L. Brittain and Professor Willis M. Sutton each stressed the value of "Education week" in five-minute talks. Dr. Brittain called attention to the great value of the assistance rendered earnest students in need of aid by the organized women of Georgia. "Sixty per cent of the boys at Tech," said Dr. Brittain, "are partly or wholly earning their way through the school. The good you are doing is great, the good you may continue to do is greater." Professor Sutton followed with an appeal not to forget that high school precedes college and the need for aid among these younger students is frequently greater than when the student has attained more nearly to maturity. Professor Sutton stressed the tremendous importance of registering all children of school age on opening day, claiming that "I can prove each day's delay costs the city $100.

liance characteristic of the more imposing wedding.

There were only two attendants, Miss Dorothy Perry, of Richmond, Ky., and L. F. Montgomery. The bride entered the drawing room with her uncle, Charles I. Ryan, meeting the groom and his best man there, and the ceremony was performed by Father James A. Horton, pastor of the Sacred Heart church.

The bride, who has a flower-like type of beauty with exquisite brunette coloring, wore a midday costume of canary yellow crepe, its bodice and panel draperies embroidered in crystals and pearls. Her hat was a large picture model of black velvet. Her corsage was of orchids, lilies of the valley and pink rose buds.

The maid of honor was gowned in white lace with sash in orange satin, and flowers the same color trimmed her brown tulle hat. Her sheaf bouquet was of pink and yellow roses.

The long drawing room which was the scene of the ceremony was given churchly effect with its foliage altar of palms that were banked to reach the ceiling and lighted by a seven-branch candelabra, burning white candles. Tall white wicker baskets filled with Easter lilies were arrayed against the foliage and at each side of the altar other baskets of the lilies were showered with lilies of the valley. The white prie dieu was draped with smilax, and the smilax was festooned on chandelier and wall lights. Appropriate music was provided by an orchestra upstairs.

The entire lower reception floor was decorated with taste, smilax and palms being used effectively, while the pier glasses were hung with the foliage and reflected great baskets of pink roses hung in front of them by streamers of pompadour ribbon.

Wedding Breakfast.

Immediately after the ceremony a delicious breakfast was served buffet style. The punch bowl was set in a mound of vari-colored flowers on a smilax-hung table in the dining room, and tasteful decoration was in vases and bowls of pink roses combined with the season's flowers in the pastel tones. The wedding cake was a great heart-shaped confection elaborately embossed in flowers in the pastel colors, and in the drawing of souvenirs from it, Miss Dorothy Perry, the maid of honor found the ring. The cake was so made that this drawing of the souvenirs did not injure the cake proper, which is supposed to be saved for the first anniversary, while the guests were each presented with little white and silver satin boxes of wedding cake as favors.

The Wedding Company.

The costuming of the ladies in the wedding company was governed by the weather, more than the calendar, and lovely summer gowns and hats were appropriate choice.

Mrs. Kuhrt, the bride's mother was gowned in black crepe embroidered in crystal beads.

Mrs. Edward C. Peters wore a beige lace gown with drapery of brown chiffon and her leghorn hat was trimmed with flowers, veiled with brown lace.

Mrs. Alfred Penn, of New Orleans, the bride's cousin, who was Miss Edythe Ryan, of Atlanta, was strikingly pretty in black, her crepe gown embroidered in dull gold threads, and her black hat trimmed with paradise. Mrs. L. F. Montgomery wore a sand colored crepe gown with black velvet picture hat.

Mrs. Mark Wimberly Pope wore a draped gown of black olga crepe and chiffon, and her picture hat was trimmed with black paradise feathers.

Mrs. John S. Clarke was gowned in white crepe figured in blue with flowered trimmed hat in blue tulle. Mrs. Thos. H. Daniel wore a lace gown in black and white with purple velvet hat. Mrs. James D. Robinson wore a lingerie gown of white lace and French embroidery with black picture hat of lace finished with a deep pink rose. Mrs. John K. Ottley wore orchid taffetas veiled with white lace and flowered tirmmed lace hat. Mrs. Logan N. Clarke wore a black lace gown with a black picture hat. Mrs. Arthur Clarke wore a beige crepe and hat the same color trimmed with French flowers.

Mrs. Lamar Rucker, who came from Athens for the wedding, wore rose chiffon and a leghorn hat trimmed with flowers.

Mrs. Thomas M. Brady wore a black lace and jet gown with toque of black lace. Mrs. Joseph N. Moody wore black chiffon combined with black velvet and a black hat. Mrs. Esmond Falvey wore black Georgette beaded in steel and a black velvet hat trimmed in steel beads.

Miss Mamie Gatins wore pale gray chiffon embroidered in crystals and a lace hat with French flowers. Mrs. John F. McDougald wore a white lace gown. Mrs. Edward H. Barnes was gowned in sand colored crepe with finish in black velvet and a black velvet hat.

During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Peters left in their automobile for the mountains of North Carolina and returning, they will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Peters on Ponce de Leon Avenue.

Their marriage while it was a quiet one was surrounded by the affectionate interest of many friends and the good wishes of the large acquaintance of their families, both of which have been identified with the upbuilding of Atlanta socially, in a civic way, and commercially since pioneer days. The bride's grandfather, John Ryan was one of the first and most admirable of Atlanta's merchants and her uncles, Charles I., A. J., John and Robert Ryan are among Atlanta's prominent citizens of the present day. Her aunt, Miss Ida Ryan was prevented by a serious accident an hour before the wedding from being present.

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.—(adv.)

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—(adv.)

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh

Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The A B C of Retailing," Etc.

Among the popular plentiful fish at this time of the year is flounder. An inexperienced buyer will recognize flounder by several distinctive characteristics—it is flat, has a thick skin, and is usually light on one side and dark on the other. In buying flounder, the important thing is to choose as thick a fish as you can possibly get, as there is a thin fillet of meat on each side of the bone. As you probably know, the meat of flounder is exceedingly white and very sweet.

Perch is plentiful at this time of year, too. Be sure in buying it that you choose only freshly caught fish, and that which has good, firm flesh. The perch that comes from fresh water is usually yellow, whereas that caught in salt water is white. This is a delicious fish, despite its many fine bones, and it has exceedingly sweet meat.

Hake, which is much like codfish, except that it has softer flesh, is available beginning this month. You can easily determine whether this fish is fresh from the water. It grows soft very quickly when out of the water for some time, so that you are well protected, and can always tell, by feeling the fish, whether it is fresh or not. This is not always the case with other kinds of fish. Hake spoils very quickly, however, and there is much waste.

Don't overlook fresh fish in planning your menus these September days.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

GETTING RID OF THE DOUBLE CHIN.

A beauty specialist recently remarked that there was no excuse for a double chin. I had to agree with her, since I know that a double chin comes from over-eating, or from a careless manner of carrying the body.

Of course, the muscle laxness that comes with old age will cause some natural sagging, and if the person is accumulating fat over the whole body the sagging skin will soon be filled out into a pouch, forming a roll under the original chin.

The first step toward ridding oneself of this disfigurement should be a general reduction to the proper weight, and ice rubs to tighten up the muscles.

A local treatment that will also help, is one in which the flesh is kneaded with the fingers as if it were soft dough; this is followed by a massage, beginning at the throat and stroking out to the tip of the chin. To do this use the palm of either hand and stroke with a light pressure, after the manner of using a flat iron on cloth.

An exercise that will help much is accomplished by dropping the jaw a little and throwing back the head as far as is possible without strain. Shut the mouth, open and shut several times—you can feel the pull along the tendons. Now roll the head around and around the shoulders, to the right, in back, to the left and front again. This will also chase off some of the fat over the throat.

Whether you use diet, exercise, massage or all three—the most important thing to remember is to rub ice over the undesirable second chin. Ten minutes rubbing is not too much—this treatment will harden the flesh so there will be a good throat line after the superfluous flesh has been consumed.

Anxious:—Vaseline will be all right for you to use on the hair to relieve its dryness.

A Reader:—I should enjoy having the cricket in my house so I cannot understand why his singing should make you nervous. It would make me think of all the delightful old tales in which crickets had figured. There is neither good nor bad luck attached to such a visit so I should forget that silly superstition if I were you.

Stenographer:—I cannot print the eyelash tonic at this time, but I shall be glad to mail you the formula on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

To Mrs. B.:—I am offering the above suggestion in reply to your request for the cream and astringents formulas.

Dimples:—Sometimes you do not see the effects from dieting until you have continued the diet for several or more weeks. This is because the system is making changes which do not count as so many pounds. You are probably adapting yourself to your new diet and clearing the system and you will soon find there is a difference in weight. From then on the reduction will continue.

You should always chew your food thoroughly, or it will lead to a chronic state of indigestion.

Tomorrow—Soothing Footbaths.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

A Time Saver.

If you keep a crochet needle in your work basket it will save you a great deal of time and bother when the end of a drawing string or tape disappears within its casing. They can easily be drawn out with the hook.

Before Baby Comes

THERE are thousands of expectant mothers who undergo much useless suffering for months before, as well as at the moment when delivery occurs. These months of suffering, with nerves and vital organs weakened, leave their effect upon the child. An eminent physician found the way to stop much of this unnecessary suffering—the same easy way which thousands of mothers have used for three generations.

Mrs. Walter S. Hadley, Bridgeport, Ind., says: "Before my little boy came I was so paralyzed in my hips and limbs I could hardly walk, and some days after a little extra exertion I couldn't walk a step. I felt it coming on this time; in fact, I could hardly get up when I sat down, but now, after using one bottle of Mother's Friend, I am so much better. I feel that I almost owe my life to Mother's Friend."

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally to the abdomen, back and hips. It penetrates remarkably, permitting the easier relaxation and distension of muscles, nerves, tissues and ligaments, and their constant easier readjustment during expectancy and at child-birth. Have no more fear or dread, mother! Start using "Mother's Friend" now—the sooner the better.

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse, and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor, because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

"Mother's Friend" contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is safe. For three generations "Mother's Friend" has relieved expectant mothers of much useless suffering. Mother! you must avoid more greases and useless substitutes. Begin using "Mother's Friend" today. It is sold at drug stores—everywhere.

WORN OUT AFTER SHE COOKED A MEAL

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read the Result

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out if I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your medicine. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising some one older."—Mrs. CHRIST. PETROFF, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

If you ask a traffic policeman whom he realy dislikes, whether he hates most slightly intoxicated drivers, bullying tractors, or obstinate street cars, he will answer briefly: "Women." I read an article by such a policeman some time ago, and he was very hard on women. According to him they never read the traffic regulations, or if so they forgot them. They preferred the wrong side of the road. They forgot to put out their hand when about to stop. When he held up the traffic, they treated him with contempt and puffed on. And if he dared to say anything to them, they commented on his manner, his appearance, and his intelligence with unmistakable contempt.

I think the policeman exaggerated, but then it is a trying life, and there is just a little truth in his complaints. Many women are excellent and disciplined drivers, but there are others who never hesitate to trade on their sex. Many women have the idea that it is a fine thing to be a woman that their femininity sheds upon them the privilege of behaving otherwise than the men. They do not instinctively respect regulations, and if they think them silly (which they often are) female common sense leads them to ignore them. Hence disputes, appearance in court, and now and then accidents. My own feeling is that motor driving is a comparatively new thing among women, that men have not grown quite accustomed to the idea that a woman can be as able a driver as any man, and therefore that they must exercise their new power with more tact and care than if they were men. A woman who drives an automobile must realize that she is a little more in the public eye than would be a man. Even a policeman is affected by femininity: it is her business to see that he is affected in a pleasant way.

DRESS

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

The Smart Sleeves of the New Autumn Frock Are Barreled From Waist to Elbow and Lavishly Decorated With Ruffles, Braid, Velvet Bands and Embroidery in Rich and Oriental Patterning.

PARIS.—It is not possible for any season to open without the display of eccentric and decorative sleeves. They are often the key to the clothes situation. This year the Paris collections prove that there is unanimity among the designers, although their every effort at secrecy indicates that one never heard of the other. But when the barreled lower sleeve appears at several houses in one week it looks as though there had been a conference.

Everyone has been doing their best with the detached sleeve, the scarf sleeve that hides the bateau neckline, the arm drapery that drops to the floor, the sling sleeve suggested by the war. Now the world is tired of these shapes and goes in for tight arm coverings for sleeves that hide the flesh, but reveal the shape of the arm. And most of them change their shape after they leave the elbow and balloon out until they reach the wrist, where they are snug like a bracelet.

Lucien Lelong was the first house to show the exaggerated ballooning at the lower part of the sleeve. He accentuated it with orange-colored velvet heavily embroidered with tarnished silver. Some of his other sleeves were

The gown shown in the sketch is one of his velvet street costumes, the color gray, enlivened with the orange and silver sleeve decoration. There is a wide belt with an applied buckle in orange and silver.

He also widens the lower sleeve by adding a graduated circular ruffle down the back seam, the narrow point reaching the wrist. Jenny shows a large number of sleeves that end in a short circular ruffle just above the wrist, not an especially graceful touch, but novel, and therefore bound to be popular in a season when the buyers cry aloud for novelty every day. They refuse to buy what they have, and that is a reasonable and sound trading instinct.

It is not a part of the subject of sleeves, but it may be added that Jenny invents so many methods of circularizing clothes that we may soon be wearing circular flounces on the skirts. At least, they are on sleeves and coats and sash ends. It is a definite movement to break the obstinacy of the straight lines. This placing of circular ruffles everywhere is not adopted by everyone, but Jenny has amazing popularity, and women wear her gowns in places where they do not even know she lives in Paris.

THE HOUSEHOLD

Edited by Anne Rittenhouse.

BUDGETING YOUR TIME.

Some women seem to think that the only thing they posess that ought to be put on a budget basis is their money. They forget their time. It seems to them, since their time is worth nothing in actual money, that they can spend it as they wish, so long of course as they manage in the course of time to get through with their work.

So they plan their funds so that they know that they are spending just the right proportion on food, and of that proportion just the right fraction on fruit and vegetables. But they never stop to ask themselves whether they are spending the right amount of time on the preparation of food for the table, on the preparation of fruits and vegetables.

You would be surprised to see how women differ in the amount of time they spend on meal-getting. One woman will spend on an average of two hours in preparing dinner while another woman will be troubled if she cannot get an entire dinner in twenty minutes or half an hour. One woman will spend twenty minutes a day in making beds and setting rooms to right, while another will spend an hour dusting and mopping and making the beds look attractive.

One woman will spend four hours a day bathing and dressing and brooding over one child, while another woman will devote about a half-hour to five and feel that she has done her duty. One woman will spend five hours on a summer's day and five hours every day for a week knitting a sweater for her husband's mother, but she would begrudge half an hour a week spent in sewing buttons on her husband's shirts and darning his socks.

BLACK-DRAUGHT OVER 30 YEARS

"Saved Me Many a Sick Spell," Says Texas Farmer, Who Has Long Known Usefulness of Black-Draught.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for years—I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. H. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out on Route 3 from here.

"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it.

"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble.

"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."

Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.

This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs.

Black-Draught helps to keep the liver in trim, helping prevent or relieve such troubles as constipation, biliousness, indigestion, sick headache.

Be sure to get the genuine.—(adv.)

THIS MAKES IT RIGHT TO TURN TO THE LEFT

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Change the Shade.

A lead comb will darken the hair and subdue the fire of red hair, at the same time being harmless.

Rick-Rack.

Old-fashioned rick-rack makes an attractive finish to the neck, sleeves and pocket of the bungalow apron.

Avoid Heavy Cake.

To prevent raisins from sinking to the bottom of a cake, place them in a pan and heat in the oven for a few minutes before putting them into the batter.

For the Salad.

Wash the lettuce and then tie it up loosely in a square of linen or cheesecloth and place on the ice. It will be crisp and fresh when you want to use it.

Splinters.

Wrap a cold water bandage around the finger with the obstinate splinter under the nail and keep wetting it. It will in time loosen the splinter and prevent festering.

TAX LEVY REDUCED BY TIFT COMMISSION

Tifton, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—Tifton's tax levy has been reduced two mills, the levy this year being 16 mills—six mills for schools and 10 mills for all other purposes. Last year the levy was 18 mills.

The levy this year is being reduced in the face of a slump in tax values which will run around $425,000. Despite the decreased values and the lower tax levy, City Manager W. T. Hargrett expects to wipe out the city's floating debt by the end of the year. This was approximately $35,000 the first of last year.

The Constitution's Patterns

A Practical Work or Morning Dress.

Pattern 3246 is here illustrated. It is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size will require 5 3-8 yards of 36-inch material.

This design has good features. The blouse may be slipped under the skirt, and the bib portion arranged over its front in apron style. When not required the bib portion is slipped under the blouse, which, worn over the skirt, turns the dress into a model which may be worn out of doors for shopping, marketing, etc. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 1 3-4 yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A Smart Gown.

Comprising waist pattern 3538 and skirt pattern 3543. The waist is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt in 7 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36 inches waist measure. To make this dress for a medium size will require 7 1-2 yards of 36-inch material.

Crepe de chine or serge with floss or chenille embroidery or linen embroidered would be good for this model. It is also attractive in satin and taffeta. The width of the skirt at the foot with plaits extended is 2 1-4 yards.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

A Sleeveless "Cover Apron.

4090. Unbleached muslin with cross stitching in red or blue would be nice for this serviceable model. One may use gingham, percale, crepe or drill. Sateen or chintz is also desirable.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 4 1-2 yards of 32-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

In ordering patterns, write name and address plainly on a sheet of paper. Order by number and enclose price in silver or stamps. Do not mail letters to The Constitution building in Atlanta, but address as follows: Fashion Department, The Atlanta Constitution, 1188-89 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

All-Star Bouts Scheduled Tuesday

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.

Boorde and Barnett to Head List

Angling for some fistic discussions that would prove satisfactory to Atlanta's fight-going public, boxing officials of the American Legion have hit upon the idea that an all-star card featuring some of the outstanding figures in local pugilism wouldn't be a bad attraction.

These matchmakers figure that nothing would suit the patronage better than to see some of the home-grown scrappers in action, so Tuesday night's encounters at the Auditorium will for the most part be confined to Atlanta talent.

Three splendid bouts have already been arranged and an additional six-round struggle is being booked. Any one of the fights wouldn't be badly labelled as a main event.

The feud between Freddie Boorde and Battling Barnett, a recent development in ring circles of this section, will be renewed, this time as the principal attraction and over a 12-round distance. It's a battle that would be hard to beat and would warrant being featured in any fight center.

The bout, however, will be backed up by two 10-round fights and a six-rounder. Fearless Ferns and Battling Joe Kennedy have drawn assignments for one of these mixups and Jackie Carr and Johnny Flynn, the Chattanooga socker, will be employed for the other. Principals in the six-round setto have not been named.

Has Boorde's "Number."

There is a sneaking suspicion among followers of pugilism here that Barnett has the Indian sign on Boorde. In two previous arguments between these battlers, Barnett won one decision, while a draw resulted in the second meeting. Boorde, naturally doesn't like to see another usurping the throne he held for so long among the featherweights of the city and firmly believes that Barnett is in for the licking of his life.

Each can take punishment and give lots of it. At the Auditorium the other night, Boorde was knocked cold in the first round, but the bell saved him and he later repaid Barnett by sending the latter to his knees during the closing rounds. It was a fight that proved immensely pleasing to the ring-siders and it is believed that a resumption of the duel will draw a great crowd.

Ferns hasn't appeared in an Atlanta ring since he walked into a swinging right propelled by "Red" Herring. In Kennedy he will find an opponent capable of hitting like a pile-driver.

Johnny Flynn made a profound impression by knocking out Mike Murphy at Ponce de Leon. Against Jackie Carr he will find a willing target, but one that will likely laugh at the efforts of the Chattanoogan to send over the finishing blow.

SAMMY SANDOW JOINS WALK MILLER'S FLOCK.

Walk Miller, owner of the south's largest stable of fighters, added another to his flock yesterday when he signed Sammy Sandow, formerly of Cincinnati, to a long time contract. Sandow's first statement after joining Miller was that he would like nothing better than to hand Tim O'Dowd another lacing.

"O'Dowd's manager wants me to make 118 pounds, does he?" asked Sandow. "He thinks I can't do it, but if he wants to make a side bet for $500 that I won't stop his fighter in a 15-round battle, my money is ready. I'll make the weight on the one condition that he take up this bet. Understand, I don't mean to bet that I can whip O'Dowd. Atlanta fans know that I can but I want it distinctly stated that I will bet Mayson, or anybody else that I can knock out Tim O'Dowd in 15 rounds and that I'll be weighing 118 pounds when it's done."

MANY ATLANTA WOMEN TO ENTER TOURNEY.

An invitation golf tournament for women to be held over the course of the Newnan Golf club on September 12, 13 and 14, is attracting wide attention among the women golfers of the state. The women are quite enthusiastic over the prospect of competing in the tourney and a large number of entries have been made.

The Constitution has been requested to broadcast the announcement that women from the following cities are invited to be present at the tournament: Atlanta, Columbus, Macon, Rome, Marietta, Griffin, LaGrange, West Point, Thomaston, Athens, Forsyth and Barnesville; Montgomery and Birmingham, Ala. The Newnan club takes this form of announcing the affair as no invitations are to be mailed.

On the morning of September 12, the qualifying round will be played. During afternoon of the 12th, which is Tuesday, a contest will be held to determine the best in the way of driving, putting and approaching. Attractive prizes are to be awarded the winners of these events.

Wednesday morning match play will begin and in the afternoon two ball Scotch foursomes will be in the limelight. The women visitors will be entertained at the club on Wednesday by the members of the Newman Golf club.

The semi-finals will take place Thursday morning and in the afternoon of the same day the finals will be played. Winners and the runners-up in all flights are to receive handsome awards.

Flights will be composed of golfers and there will be a prize for every division that fills. Handicaps will apply in all fights; $2.50 is the entry fee required. Mrs. W. Y. Atkinson, Jr., of Newnan, has charge of all arrangements and all women who wish to enter the tournament are asked to write her immediately at Newnan.

A number of Atlanta women are expected to take part in the affair, and probably as many as 30 golfers from this city will enter.

Cincinnati, September 6.—Cincinnati went back into the first division today by taking a free-hitting game from St. Louis, 7 to 4. Sherdel was driven from the box in the fifth inning. COACH STEIN IS ON SCENE

BY JACK MILTON.

Russell Stein, picked by Walter Camp for his all-American football team of 1921, arrived in Atlanta Wednesday, so as to have plenty of time to rest and become settled before taking charge of the Oglethorpe football team, which he will coach this season. Coach Stein was captain of the Washington and Jefferson eleven in 1921, and played every position except center.

Browning, also of Washington and Jefferson, a backfield star, accompanied Coach Stein. He will take charge of the ends and backfield, thus allowing Coach Stein to devote all of his time to the development of the line.

The players began drifting in last week and fully 30 men are already on hand working out daily in an effort to be in the best possible condition when Coach Stein takes charge September 11.

Among last year's letter men are Captain David, one of the fightingest ends and hardest workers in the south; Dock Crowe, guard and tackle, who was the terror of all players who opposed him last year, a boy destined to make a strong bid for all-Southern honors this year; Gee-Chee Varnadoe, the level-headed quarter of last season; Rube Bartenfelt, center; Runt Hambrick, guard; Cam Campbell, end; Olive Oil Vickers, and Mutt Stephens, backfield; Hack Hafele, end, and last but not least, "Tiny Cow" Roberts, the 250-pound guard. Roberts never played in a football game until last year, but he made the team with ease and toward the latter part of the season played a very creditable game.

There are several men on hand who failed to place last year, and from the seriousness with which they train it is a cinch some of them will give those who place this year plenty of trouble. Taken all in all this looks to be Oglethorpe's best year on the gridiron, and her supporters have good cause to feel optimistic over her chances.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

St Louis Trounces Cleveland.

St. Louis, September 6.—St. Louis made a clean sweep of the four-game series with Cleveland by winning today's contest 11 to 3. The locals retain the league lead by half a game as a result of the victory. Davis did not allow a hit until the fifth inning. Williams clouted his 35th home run of the season, taking the major league circuit drive lead. His four-bagger came in the sixth inning off Middleton, with no one on base. This puts him one ahead of Rogers Hornsby, of the St. Louis Cardinals, who leads the National league. It was Williams' third homer in three days. Sisler got 2 hits out of 5 tries, making 36 consecutive games in which he has hit safely. This put him only four games behind the modern major league record, set by Ty Cobb in 1911. Jacobson also hit a homer in the third.

Detroit Wins.

Chicago, September 5.—Detroit tightened its hold on third place with an 8 to 5 victory over Chicago today. Robertson failed in the sixth, after the Sox seemingly had the game safe by a 5-3 margin and was relieved by Davenport, who was unable to check a batting rampage by the Tigers. Cutshaw was ordered out of the game in the second inning for disputing a decision of Umpire Owens.

GARDNER FALLS BEFORE BOBBY'S CONSISTENT GAME

Jones' Path to Semi-Finals Looks Easier; Meets McPhail Today in the Third Round

Frank Godchaux Meets Chick Evans; Sweetser vs. Guilford; Tolley and Knepper. Committee Ruling Upsets Aulbach.

Dope on Today's Golf Battles

Sweetser vs. Guilford; Jones vs. McPhail; Godchaux vs. Evans; Tolley vs. Knepper. As the field narrows the matches are becoming harder, and the encounters set for today at Brookline appear especially difficult to figure.

Jones and Evans look to be winners, at a glance. McPhail, who will be Bobby's opponent, put out a fine golfer in Johnston yesterday, but the consistent par game of the Atlantan should give Jones the victory. Godchaux, who faces Evans, would hardly be a match for the former champion, even were he at the top of his game, which evidently is not the case, judging from his work against Rotan Wednesday. Sweetser is capable of giving Jesse Guilford, the champion, a real battle, and Knepper is set to send down the lone British contender, Cyril Tolley.

Brookline, Mass., September 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—A youth from the south, fulfilling promises of golf greatness, put out a two-time champion from the west, a popular idol was toppled over on the spot where his pedestal was erected, a British lion was held at bay by a boy, and still another double titlist defeated—a one time holder of the honors. These were the high spots today in the second round of match play at 36 holes in the national amateur golf championship tournament.

The first of the starred events was the victory of Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, over Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, twice holder of the national championship. Their match, all even after 18 holes, went to the sixteenth green this afternoon before Jones won. Consistent par golf, which has marked his play in every round to date, defeated the brilliant but erratic game of Gardner.

Francis Ouimet, winner of the national open on these links in 1913, was the idol that passed out of the picture. Rudy Knepper, of Sioux City, conqueror of the British star, W. B. Torrance yesterday defeated him three up, two to play.

George W. Aulbach, a young Boston public links player, met the British lion, Cyril Tolley, former champion of Great Britain. The lad, putting prettily, fought off Tolley's driving attack until he was charged with loss of the twentieth-eighth hole by the referee's decision that he had improved his lie by pressing down the grass. Then he cracked—his protest having been waved aside and lost the match a few holes later, 3 and 2.

Fownes Defeated.

Chick Evans, seeking his third championship, put out W. C. Fownes, Jr., seeking his second, returning in kind the action of Fownes who eliminated Chick in the tournament which Fownes won here in 1910. The score was 11-9.

Willie Hunter, now New York, but still carrying some of the prestige of his British amateur championship of last year, went away seven up, six to play before the accurate play of Jesse Sweetser, metropolitan champion. The defeat of Harrison Johnston, of St. Paul, was accomplished by Billy McPhail, only a year or two ago a caddy on this course, 4-3.

Frank Godchaux's unexpected five-four victory over George V. Rotan, Louisiana triumphing over Texas in a conflict confined to the south and Jesse P. Guilford's advance toward succession to himself as champion, in which Reginald Lewis, of Greenwich, Conn., went down 11 to 9 were the day's other results.

Godchaux and Rotan had a peculiar match. It was a see-saw battle practically for 21 holes. In the morning both required 40 going out and the same amount coming in for totals of 80. It indicated that neither was playing golf of which they are capable. They were even at the half way station. Then followed some weird golf by both during which Rotan, particularly, could not locate the objectives and required 46 strokes in the afternoon nine holes to 41 for his opponent.

Godchaux lost the second, won the third and but once par had been touched by either. Godchaux won the next two holes in a row to become two up, halved the sixth and won the seventh, eighth and ninth for five up at the turn. The rest of the holes were halved the match ending on the fourteenth green.

Today's Matches.

Matches tomorrow, decide the semi-finalists, and will bring together Guilford and Sweetser and Tolley and Knepper in tilts expected to produce super-golf and Jones and McPhail, Evans and Godchaux in engagements regarded as prospective victories for the players first named.

Although the aquatic conditions of Monday were almost repeated by the rain that came with a tempest this afternoon, there was little to indicate that the sodden greens and swamp-like fairways changed the tide of play.

Except in the Tolley-Aulbach match in which the public links player led the British golfer one up at the end of the morning round, no decision on 36 holes reversed the standing at 18. The Jones-Gardner and Johnston-McPhail matches were brought to a conclusion in the rain, after starting all even on the last round of play.

The Big Upset.

The failure of Francis Ouimet to stop Rudy Knepper, the trans-Mississippi and Iowa state champion, was an upset.

Knepper, however, outplayed the Boston star. Stymes on two occasions helped him at times when Ouimet was short on his putts. That, in the main, was the story of his downfall, the final result being four and two.

Starting all square in the afternoon, Bobby Jones and Robert Gardner, played most of the time in a steady downpour. The Chicago player lost an excellent chance to take the lead by poor putting. In fact his failure in the short game on the green eventually caused his defeat and elimination.

Jones became one up on the sixth with a birdie three, dropping his second within three feet of the hole for an easy putt. The southern player found a trap on the seventh and took four to reach the green, conceding Gardner a par three and squaring the match again. Gardner took three putts on the 385-yard eighth while Jones with another birdie, became one up again. Bobby played perfect golf for the next eight holes, winning the ninth and twelfth and halving the remainder, all in par figures.

Bobby One Over 4's at Brookline

BY E. ELLSWORTH GILES

Choice of Clubs Helping Atlantan

Brookline, Mass., September 6.—(Special.)—Bob Jones, as usual, was the chief performer of the day, and the other Bob gave him every opportunity to show his class, by pressing him all the way until the hour arrived for a decision, when Jones had just enough up his sleeve to decide the issue in his favor the same as he did yesterday with young Beadle.

In the downpour which greeted the golfers in the afternoon Jones promptly took two of the first three holes, which advantage he held to the twelfth hole, where a break of the game went against Gardner, or perhaps, better, where Jones used fine judgment in the selection of a club on the putting green.

The twelfth hole is 130 yards in length with the tee elevated well above the green. Both players pitched to the green, Gardner 40 feet away and Jones half the distance. The high carrying balls made deep holes in the green. The divot was two inches in front of Jones' ball and a similar distance directly behind Gardner's. Gardner, with putter, could not swing back normally and so half missed his approach putt, the ball stopping 12 feet short. Jones, using a mashie, jumped the ball over the trouble dead for his three. Gardner missed and the hole went to Jones and with that all hope for the former champion. The concluding holes were fought out, but it was a mere formality as seen from the sidelines.

Gardner had another bit of misfortune on the final hole of the match. Although it probably lost him nothing as he made a masterly recovery shot only to find Jones waiting for him at the cup for a half and the match 3 and 2.

20 Feet from Cup.

Jones' tee shot stopped 20 feet from the cup, while Gardner's pitch landed a foot closer and buried itself on the incline behind the hole. Jones' away rolled up dead and then Gardner with a full niblick cut the ball out and rolled it close to the hole for a par 3. Never a sign of displeasure was discernible in fact or manner of Gardner, one of the finest sportsmen in the world of golf or any other athletic sport.

Here are the scores:

Jones, afternoon—
Out .....554 453 544—39
In 453 454 3

Gardner—
Out .....655 444 454—41
In 455 545 3

Jones' score for every hole that he has played since he came to Brookline, including the exhibition match with Ouimet against Tolley and Wethered, is just one stroke more than even 4's. Some golf and an omen that he will take some beating.

Jones in the morning found the former national champion and British runner-up, Bob Gardner, in one of his best scoring moods. Following on top of yesterday's unexpected, this come back of Gardner's, whereby he came home in 34, after being 2 down at the turn, took a heavy toll out of the nervous system of Jones, who was moving along smoothly in par figures. Jones, by the way, has been knocking at the door of par consistently in every round that he has played thus far. Out in 37 and 2 up Jones came home in par figures only to lose his 2 holes of advantage and quit all square at lunch time.

Here are the morning scores:

Jones—
Out .....435 454 345—37
In .....453 454 344—36—73

Gardner—
Out .....546 444 444—39
In .....442 453 435—34—73

Had Gardner taken three putts on the home green as against a chip, and one putt for Jones, the Atlanta boy would have gone to lunch one down.

Birdies Beat Bob.

Jones lost both the 11th and 12th holes, although he played them in perfect pars. In fact, Bobby nearly matched the two birdies hung up by Gardner. Jones' 15-foot putt on No. 11 barely missed holing as did his 6-yard putt on the next green. A bit of misfortune overtook Jones at the 380-yard 13th, where he had a corking long tee shot. He found the ball imbedded in a hole in the middle of the fairway. After a careful survey of the situation Jones took a mashie niblick from his bag and went into the turf with all the power at his command. The ball rose beautifully and carried squarely on to the green, 8 yards from the pin, from where he nearly holed a 3, but nevertheless, was down in a par 4. Jones had a very long tee shot, or he could not possibly have reached the green from the unfortunate lie.

Both golfers played the long and difficult 14th hole indifferently, Jones, with his tee and second shot, while Gardner sliced his second wide of the green. Jones' tee shot pulled to the rough, his second was pulled wider still, up against a stone wall, where he could scarcely take a half-back swing. He managed through skill to reach the green's edge, from where he went down in two putts for a half.

Jones' tee shot on 15 was sliced a bit to semi-rough and up against the entrance driveway, but he pitched a beautiful high shot to the green and got a half with Gardner, who was 75 yards over the road from the tee with one of the longest balls of the tournament. Gardner obligingly took three putts to Bobby's two on the short 16th and the match was all square.

Jones, with his customary fine drive, pitched to the 17th green in position for a par 4 but Gardner shut the door of opportunity in his face by holing a birdie 3 to stand dormie for the morning. Long drives by each player to the 18th were followed by good seconds, but just a trifle short. Jones' ball was lying in the grassy fringe at the green's edge, while Gardner was squarely on. Jones chipped sweetly to within holing distance, while Gardner's approach putt was wide and short of the hole. Gardner missed and Bobby holed to square the match and leave the pair where they started in the morning. Jones meets the Bostonian, William McPhail, who rather unexpectedly defeated Harrison Johnston today. Jones should have no trouble with McPhail but you never can tell these days with new stars at every tournament.

TATE WINNER OVER ALBANY

Cartersville, Ga., September 6.—(Special.)—With "Goat" Cochran pitching air-tight ball and giving up only five hits Tate won the second game of the series from Albany here Wednesday afternoon by the score of 6 to 3. This is a reversal of the figures for Tuesday's game, which went to Albany by the score of 6 to 3.

"Doc" Smith Is Feature As Atlanta Team Trims The New Orleans Pelicans

Work of Eddie Moore and Joe Klugman in the Infield Kills Many Pelican Rallies. Double-Header Billed Today.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

The Atlanta Crackers opened their final home stay of the season with an 8 to 2 victory over the New Orleans team, Wednesday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, a double-header will be played today starting at 2 o'clock.

Mitchell, the young college star, was sent to the mound by Manager Bernsen and Mitchell did just the thing needed to give Atlanta a victory, for he pitched well in the pinches, aided by some mighty nifty fielding on the part of his mates, especially in the infield.

Klugman and Moore played a magnificent game around the keystone sack, bagging no less than 23 chances between them. Klugman accepted 12 chances without a bobble and Moore was close behind with 11. The pair started two fast double killings and prevented the Pals from creating a rally.

Martina was on the mound for the Dobbsmen, but he was ineffective, especially in the pinches. The Atlanta team had only 3 men left on the paths and nicked Martina for nine safety bingles and 8 runs.

Manager Bernsen chose to sit on the bench and sent "Doc" Smith to first base in his stead. "Doc" aided very materially in the victory for his three hits came at opportune times. He got a double and two singles. On his first trip to the plate he singled to right, scoring two runners. In the sixth with Mayer on third he singled to center and in the seventh he again scored Mayer with a double past third. It was a day of pinch hitting for "Doc."

Pels Score First.

The Pels started the scoring in the initial frame when one runner was sent across. Bogart, first up, singled to center field but was caught a moment later when Schmidt threw him out to Klugman. Gilbert flied out and Henry singled to left. Tucker hit a two-timer to right, scoring Henry. Ewoldt ended the inning by grounding out.

A double killing by Klugman, Moore and Smith prevented any scoring in the third, but the Pels scored again in the sixth. Henry, first up, singled and went to second when Mitchell lost the plate and gave Tucker 4 balls. Wetzel laid a beautiful sacrifice down the third line, advancing both men. Ewoldt sent a long fly to left, scoring Henry but B. Smith ended the inning by flying out to Moore.

The Pels started another rally in the seventh inning but a double play killed it. Again in the eighth the Cracker inner works spoiled a possible New Orleans rally by some fast fielding.

The Crackers were not to be outdone and they promptly started scoring in their half of the first inning. Guyon walked as a starter, went to third when Wano hit a single to left on a hit and run signal. Mayer hit to Bob Smith and Guyon scored, Wano took third and Mayer took second when the Atlanta boy let the ball ooze through his legs to left field. D. Smith brought both men home with a single to right field. Klugman hit into a double killing.

Another Attack.

Martina pitched well for the next 4 innings, allowing but one hit, but the Crackers batted around in the sixth when Guyon doubled to the right field bank to start with. Wano reached first on an error by Henry. Mayer scored both Guyon and Wano with a triple to deep left. D. Smith scored Mayer with a single to center. Klugman sacrificed and Hock scored Smith with a double to left. Schmidt walked but was forced at second when Moore hit to Bogart. Mitchell ended the inning by grounding out.

Atlanta scored the final run in the seventh inning, on a double by Mayer and "Doc" Smith.

The game was one of the fastest of the season and the Atlanta infield had a busy day, and a perfect one. The infield had a total of 35 chances without a bobble.

Officials Named for A. A. U. Swim Races at East Lake Saturday

BY LOY WARWICK, Jr.

The officials have been selected to preside over the big swimming meet to be held at East Lake, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Johnny Weissmuller will appear for the first time before Atlanta fans.

Those to officiate are Al Doonan, vice president of the southern division of the A. A. U., will be head referee; head finish judge; C. W. Streit, Jr., asistant finish judges are, C. A. Bernier, W. H. Hutsell, Bernard Neel, F. M. Sutton, Rufus Bass, Frank Anderson, E. W. McClure, Frank Ormsbee and T. K. Hudgens, Jr.

H. C. Voorlus will act as chief timekeeper and his assistant timekeepers will be Joe Bean, H. J. Stegeman, R. A. Clay and George Griffin. Frank Kopf will take the role of clerk of course, and W. A. Alexander as starter.

Among those officiating are a number of men who have played stellar roles in athletics, and it might be well to mention them in that degree. Streit is an old Auburn and Washington and Lee football star. Mr. Bernier is athletic director at the University of Alabama; Hutsell, basketball coach at Auburn; Rufus Bass, of the A. A. C. basketball team, and Joe Bean is present coach of the A. A. C. basketball squad; H. J. Stegeman, Georgia's coach; Kid Clay, George Griffin and Alexander all of Tech.

One of the outstanding features of the meet will be the presence of Johnny Weismuller, world's champion swimmer. Weismuller is but a youngster, being only 17. Johnny has torn all previous records to smash. Having no more regard for some so-called unbreakable record than if it had never been made, he has broken records established by the greatest swimmers the world has known.

The public is cordially invited by the Atlanta Athletic club to attend the meet at its country home, East Lake.

Admission will be $1.00 and tickets are on sale at these stands: Murray's Cigar and Soda stores, in the Candler Forsyth, Palmer buildings; and also at the town club on Auburn avenue.

Dr. Sanford Discusses Red and Black's List; Newberry Is First Foe

Georgia Official Declares Bulldogs Must Wade Through the Stiffest Southern Schedule Ever Attempted.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

The Georgia-Virginia football classic, one of the real battles backed by tradition in the south, is going to be waged on Georgia soil again this year instead of in the Old Dominion.

In fact, it's going to be played right at Athens in the new Sanford stadium and word to this effect was brought to Atlanta by no less a person than Dr. S. V. Sanford himself, who is hurrying back to Athens after dodging all over Dixie in a Dodge during the summer months.

This simply means one more major football game for Atlanta this season, for Athens games have become Atlanta games in these days of motor cars and motor roads, which means that Athens is providing Atlanta with the opportunity to see practically every big southern team in action during the year. Tennessee, always formidable, will play Georgia in Athens, so will Vanderbilt and, now likewise Virginia.

With Tech taking on Alabama and Auburn on the home lot, Atlanta will get a glimpse of practically every football player of note that the section boasts—and then there are a couple of Oglethorpe games that will help some, too, don't forget that.

DR. SANFORD PLEASED WITH SCHEDULE.

Dr. Sanford is more and more pleased with his Georgia schedule the more he considers it.

"I believe it's the stiffest southern schedule ever attempted," he said. "Anyhow, it gives Georgia a real test as a southern football factor. We have only one intersectional game. That was provided for advisedly. We have discovered that we can sustain collegiate interest to a higher degree if we play our natural rivals of our own section rather than if we seek foemen farther afield.

"We'll get a chance to get in action against the middle west when we encounter Chicago on October 7th, but that's so early in the season that I'm not anticipating any serious results from the invasion, one way or the other.

"But just consider what we tackle in the south. We open with Newberry on September 23, just three days after school opens. That's a preparatory game. Then comes Mercer, and we are told that Josh Cody is going to have something that every college is bound to respect. The following week we make the trip to Chicago and then come back to play gallant little Furman in Greenville, South Carolina.

"From that time on we have no rest. On October 21, while Tech is storming the Navy, we'll be entertaining the powerful Tennessee team at home. That's going to be a battle unless all indications go wrong. By that time we'll know whether Georgia has a real football team or not. Then Oglethorpe comes, and Oglethorpe is always right about that time of year and should be better this year than ever.

"On November 4 comes our classic struggle with Auburn at Columbus, always as bitterly fought a game as the south produces. The next week along comes Virginia with new prospects and new hopes.

"Then, on the 18th of November, Vanderbilt at Athens, with that tie game of last year to avenge, and, finally, on the 25th, in Montgomery, our battle with Alabama, which always proves the most spectacular game of the southern season."

REAL TEST IS PROVIDED.

As Dr. Sanford well points out, the schedule gives Georgia an unmistakable test. His contest with Virginia gives Georgia a line on the Virginia and North Carolina colleges. Alabama plays Mississippi A. & M. and Louisiana State. Auburn plays Tulane. Vanderbilt encounters Texas and Kentucky. So does Alabama.

Which would seem to cover Dixie fair to middling well. Anyhow, if Georgia goes through with that schedule undefeated, Georgia can point with pride and then some.

BRIGMAN OFFERS UNUSUAL

Used Car Bargains

Removal Clearance Sale

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

We are moving, and at the same time discontinuing the passenger car business to devote our entire time and resources towards the distribution of Federal Trucks.

We have seventeen used cars. These cars must be sold. We have no space for them in our new home. We had rather sell them far below their actual worth, than to be forced to store them elsewhere. You can appreciate our position. Come down and take your pick at almost your own price.

Some of these cars have been used only a few miles as demonstrators. Others have been rebuilt and repainted. Still others will be offered "as is" at ridiculous prices.

They are both open and closed models, and range from $55 to $1,250 in price. We will give liberal terms, but are not anxious to trade, as it will cost as much or more to store and sell your car than the ones we now have, for ours are real bargains and are in salable condition.

ACES AND VARIED MUSIC FOR TODAY

Warner's Orchestra Plays at 6 O'Clock—Miss McClatchey Arranges Program for 9 O'Clock.

Music by the Seven Aces at 6 o'clock and another clevely varied and thoroughly artistic program arranged by Miss Belle McClatchey for a group of talented musicians at 9 o'clock, will provide the radio divertisement from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution today.

The Aces, "hitting on all seven," will open the day's musical festivities promptly at 6 o'clock with a jazz number to be announced by radio. They will play six selections interspersed with late news flashes and Constitution features. The boys are getting better every day and the music will be quick, snappy and well worth listening to.

The 9 o'clock entertainers will be Miss Belle McClatchey, violin; Miss Emily McEntire, piano; Miss Zula Foster, soprano, and Miss Lena White, piano accompanist.

Miss McClatchey has arranged 12 numbers to include many of the most popular of all the ballads ever written into the English language, "Just A-wearyin' for You" and "Mighty Lak a Rose," two songs by Frank L. Stanton which have been sung with pleasure wherever the English language is spoken, will be features of the recital.

The complete program is given elsewhere in this department.

CARTERSVILLE MAN DIES FROM INJURIES

Dispatches from Hot Springs, Ark., received in Atlanta Wednesday evening state that W. A. Brown, of Cartersville, Ga., who was injured in an automobile accident about a mile from Hot Springs Tuesday, died in a hospital Wednesday as a result of his injuries.

Mrs. Brown was also injured in the accident, but was reported as in condition to leave the hospital Wednesday. Mrs. T. S. Chancellor and Miss Lucile Chancellor, of Atlanta, were also in the car at the time of the accident and were painfully injured. The car, which turned over on a steep grade about a mile out of Hot Springs on the Country club road, was being driven by Will Howe, proprietor of the Rockefeller hotel.

Mr. Brown was pinned under the overturned car, receiving internal injuries. The driver of the car said that he swerved to allow another car to pass and that his car got out of his control.

The Chancellors are widely known in Atlanta. Mr. Chancellor is a floor manager of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, and the residence is 2 East Ninth street. He could not be reached Tuesday night.

Rosa Ponselle, the noted singer, is the first American born prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera company to have received her education in the United States.

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD N. DAVIS

Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON NO. 141.

Radio Dictionary.

ATTENUATION—When telephonic messages are transmitted over wires, either in ordinary wire telephony or using radio frequencies, increasing distances cause damping of the amplitude of the alternating current. This effect is known as "attenuation" and increases with the frequency with the result that in ordinary wire telephony low notes are heard louder at the receiving station than high notes. This is due to the fact that the frequencies of the sound varies from 100 to 3,000 cycles per second.

RADIATION RESISTANCE—When power is supplied to a radio transmitting circuit, a portion of this power is radiated from the circuit in the form of electro-magnetic waves, the remainder being dissipated in the circuit itself or in the immediate surroundings. Owing to the fact that the power radiated at any frequency is proportional to the square of the current flowing, the radiative effect may be assumed to cause a definite increase in the effective resistance of the circuit and is analogous to the energy dissipation as heat in a conductor. This apparent resistance increase is termed "radiation resistance" and is directly proportional to the square of the frequency or inversely proportional to the square of the wave length.

WATT—The "watt" is the power expended by a current of one ampere in a resistance of one ohm. When a larger unit of power is desired the "kilowatt" is employed which is equal to 1,000 watts. Seven hundred and forty-six watts equal one horsepower.

"DUO-LATERAL" COIL—A coupling coil with a type of winding in which the wires in successive layers are slightly staggered with reference to each other. The distributed capacity of the winding is small and a winding of given inductance occupies a smaller space than a single-layer winding.

CAPACITIVELY COUPLED RECEIVER—A receiving set in which the coupling between the receiving apparatus and the antenna circuit is affected by the use of condensers. In a simple form of circuit the primary and secondary coils are fixed permanently at right angles to each other, thus preventing inductive coupling. Capacitive or electro-static coupling, as it is commonly known, does not give as sharp tuning as inductive coupling.

"STAND-BY" CIRCUITS—Circuits so arranged as to respond to a wide variety of wave lengths. An ordinary inductively coupled set used with tight coupling will give broad tuning and receive signals from a number of stations. A circuit used for this purpose, namely, to receive signals over a wide range, is also commonly known as a "pick-up" circuit.

AUTODYNE—"Autodyne" reception is produced in a regenerative circuit when the same vacuum tube is used as a detector and as a generator of local oscillations. In this method of reception "beats" of audible frequency are produced by tuning the antenna circuit to the incoming signals and adjusting the local oscillating circuit so as to have a slightly different frequency, the resultant "beat" being equal to the difference between the frequency of the incoming oscillations and the frequency of the local oscillations.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS!

Radio Editor—I have a receiving set with an eighty-foot aerial, forty feet high. My instruments are two variometers, a variocoupler, Western Electric VT-1 tube, rheostant. A battery, B. battery, and phones. I receive all the nearby stations quite clearly. I want to slightly increase my range, and also increase the intensity of my signals. Could this be done by adding two stages of audio frequency amplification

D. R.

Audio frequency amplifiers will increase your range slightly, and will increase the sound intensity manyfold. If you want a greater range than that afforded by this type of amplifier you should add one or two stages or radio frequency.

Radio Editor—Despite your assuring words about the safety from lightning from outdoor aerials, my mother refuses to let me put one outside, and it is solely for this reason. Now what I want to know is whether I can rig up a wire in my attic that will be good enough to catch the signals for me. By stretching a wire diagonally I can get about 100 feet. Will this do? The house is about forty-feet high. C. E.

If you are not so very distant from a broadcasting station this attic aerial that you mention will be quite fai right.

LISTENING IN

Wireless concerts for air passengers have now become an assured fact, as proved by the trip of a commercial passenger airplane from Geneva to Paris last week. The experiment, which had been tried on the Paris-London route with only passable results, was, on this trip, wholly successful and satisfactory. The music was sent out by the station at Lausanne, and was heard plainly until the machine struck rain some distance beyond Dijon. From that point, however, conversation was held with the Bourget.

Army posts are pressing the special study of radio in an endeavor to overcome the principal difficulty in the operation of radiophone appartus from airplanes, that is, the noise produced by the engines which drive the plane.

It has been remarked that since large corporations find it profitable to provide entertainment by means of radio for their employees in isolated places, this may also be the solution of keeping the hired girl back on the farm.

After having been an invalid for 32 years, Miss Anna B. Sirdevan, of Passic, N. J., is now learning to walk for the first time.

HELLENIC RULER'S THRONE MENACED

The Greeks are preparing to make a stand on the outskirts of Smyrna and an important battle is expected to take place there. Defeat for the Greeks at Smyrna will mean practical annihilation, for all avenues of escape will have been cut off and they will be fighting with their backs to the sea.

Admirals Conferring.

French and British admirals in Near Eastern waters are conferring regarding measures to be taken for protection of their nationals in Smyrna. Capture of Smyrna by the Turks might endanger the lives of all Christians there. France has notified England that she is sending additional warships to safeguard her nationals. Refugees are being shipped out of Smyrna for Thrace and nearby Greek islands.

Reports that massacres and persecution of Christians are continuing in evacuated districts have given rise to further uneasiness. The known sympathy of the Allied nations toward the Greek cause will not make the Turks any less ruthless once they capture the most important center for Christian Europeans in Asia Minor.

VARIETY OF MUSIC PLAYED FOR WGM

Seven Aces Orchestra, With Miss Inez Marvin and Mrs. C. E. Bennett Are Heard.

Oh man!
Music?
Shades of Schumann and Bert Williams, yes!

An orchestra and two soloists Wednesday made folks happy all the way from Atlanta to Saskatchewan and further convinced radio fans throughout this more or less land of liberty that radio is the greatest invention of the age.

The seven aces started the day off with a deliciously prolonged shiver of ecstatic jazz. If they have radio in the Elysian fields Miss Terpsichore herself must have felt a deep-seated twinge of regret that she died before she had a chance to dance by Seven Aces music.

Bob Pittman, the banjo ace, was just about back in his usual stellar form. He had been a little handicapped the last two days by reason of a deep and painful wound on his business finger. He raked it along a banjo string while putting a little extra enthusiasm into his music in the first number Monday evening, when he was leading with the banjo in the absence of the peerless pianist and leader of the organization. With blood streaming all over his banjo, he kept right on plunking out music for the full hour. The finger is still a little stiff, but you wouldn't have known it from the music.

"My Rambler Rose," a new number, and "O Sole Mio," one for which the aces have received more encores than any other, were features.

Miss Inez Marvin, whose violin and blues songs have already made her one of the most popular Atlanta radio entertainers, was the star of the 9 o'clock program with Mrs. C. E. Bennett, pianist. The two presented a delightful variety of music, rag, sentiment and classic. They played "Kiss Mamma, Kiss Papa," violin and piano, as an opener. Miss Marvin sang "The Land of the Sky Blue Waters" in excellent voice. Her violin solo selections were "Chant Sans Paroles," and Tosti's "Good-bye." The two musicians played "In Maytime," "He may Be Your Man But He Comes to See Me Sometimes," and "Hot Lips," together. Many radio requests for encore numbers were refused because of lack of time to grant them.

A break in the landphone connection between the radio station and Roseland, where the Royal Club orchestra was playing, was discovered after the program had started and too late to trace it and repair it. Miss Marvin and Mrs. Bennett had arranged a program to run but 40 minutes, in order to leave time for broadcasting Royal Club dance music, but they stepped in the breach beautifully and played three additional numbers, "Kitten On the Keys," a piano solo; "The Songs My Mother Used to Sing," violin and piano, and "Three O'Clock in the Morning," a violin and piano composition which a radio listener had requested.

The radio department regrets the accident which deprived its hearers of the Royal Club dance music but the break will be repaired in time for the Royal Club's next dance.

QUICK PEACE SEEN IN COAL MEETING

DEBATE DELAYS COAL BILL VOTE.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL.

United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, September 6.—Debate, first on the Daugherty injunction and then over an amendment characterized by its opponents as a protection to profiteers, combined Wednesday to hold up passage of the Cummins coal distribution and anti-profiteering bill.

Thus, while one senate element was condemning the injunction which fails, according to its antagonists, to remedy the transportation tie-up, another element was delaying enactment of that measure designed expressly to meet the emergency created by that tie-up.

In addition to these two obstancles a third presented itself last Wednesday—the absence of a quorum. The senate now stands adjourned until Thursday morning, and the sergeant-at-arms has been instructed, on motion of Senator Curtis, the senate floor leader, to round up enough missing senators to assure a liberal margin of attendance. A roll call late Wednesday revealed that 47 senators were present (two less than a quorum); five in the city but not present; and 44 out of the city.

Protest by Robinson.

The first delay, Thursday, came in the protest against the Daugherty injunction by Senator Robinson, democrat, of Arkansas. In brief, Robinson charged that the injunction violates the constitution and sections 6 and 20 of the Clayton anti-trust act; and it will serve to coerce the workers into acceptance of the labor board's decision when adverse to them; and that it leaves the railroads apparently at liberty to disregard the rulings of the board at will.

Senator Watson, Indiana, administration spokesman, in defense of the injunction, cited the precedent of the supreme court decision in the Debs case and argued that it did not violate the Clayton act, insisting that it was intended only to guarantee the continuity of interstate commerce, and in nowise was intended to abrogate freedom of speech or assemblage under the constitution.

Watson defended President Harding against Robinson's attacks, and pointed out that he had gone out of his way to mediate the strike, for the public good.

Amendment Defeated.

Resumption of debate on the Sutherland amendment to the Cummins bill, resulted in its defeat without a record vote. However, the bill still has another "joker" to be disposed of, in the form of an amendment introduced by Senator Dial, democrat, of South Carolina. His amendment provides that nothing in the bill shall be construed as changing or modifying the measure, when enacted as to assigning cars for hauling or transporting coal on contracts entered into prior to July 25, 1922. This is identical with the Sutherland amendment except that the date in the defeated amendment was September 1, 1922.

Even when the Dial amendment is disposed of, the fate of the Cummins bill would seem somewhat uncertain in view of definitely growing opposition. Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, has aligned himself with the opposition, "not to protect profiteers," but in belief that the bill is "unconstitutional and unwise."

Meantime, the house, awaiting conference reports on the coal legislation, the tariff and soldier bonus bills continues to meet and immediately adjourn each day.

Weather Report.

Washington, D. C., September 6.—Continued deterioration of cotton or only poor progress took place generally, although good progress was reported in a few sections. Temperatures averaged normal in the extreme eastern portion of the cotton belt, but were considerably above normal or excessively hot in the western and northwestern portions, and the drought was intensified in the western cotton states. Further deterioration of cotton occurred in central and western Oklahoma, most of Texas, and in much of Arkansas, although moderate rainfall was beneficial in northeastern Arkansas and at scattered localities in Texas. Conditions continued unsatisfactory for cotton in Mississippi, and there is much complaint of premature opening in Alabama. Cotton was rather benefited by dry weather in Georgia, but the condition continues very poor, and there is practically no new fruit in South Carolina, where conditions are generally rather poor and slowly deteriorating. No material change took place in Tennessee and northern North Carolina, but cotton deteriorated in southern North Carolina, where weevil damage and shedding are increasing. Picking and ginning made excellent progress under generally favorable weather conditions.—Marvin.

Synopsis of Weather and Crop conditions in Georgia for the Week Ending Tuesday, September 5, 1922.

Atlanta, Ga., September 6.—Although the weather was moderately cool at the beginning of the week, the temperature gradually rose and the last day of the week was the warmest for the summer at many stations. The week was also quite dry until near the close, when considerable rain fell in the Savannah river basin. In many sections the dry weather with adequate sunshine was favorable for cotton, but in others the crop continued to deteriorate. The condition remains generally very poor. There continue to be received many reports of damage by weevil, and some of premature opening due to dry weather. Cotton is now beginning to open to the northern limit of the state, and picking is generally under very favorable conditions; ginning also is proceeding more rapidly. There will be no top crop of cotton. The drought which may now be said to prevail over considerable portions of the state has injured late and upland corn very much, and to a less extent most minor crops, as white and sweet potatoes, peanuts, sorghum and cane. The dry weather is also having a bad effect on fall gardens and pastures, which in many counties are drying up. A good deal of forage and hay were saved during this week. Some sorghum syrup has been made. White potatoes are good, but need rain; sweet potatoes continue excellent, but the late-maturing crop would be greatly benefited by rain. Cane made good growth during the week. Pears for canning are abundant. There is much interest in the pineappale pear in southeastern Georgia. A continuation of dry weather will soon render fall plowing difficult.

STEEL MILLS GAIN IN OUTPUT AFTER DECLINE

Former Bearish Traders Buy Stocks as Market Makes Slight Decline

BY R. L. BARNUM,
Constitution's Financial Correspondent.

New York, September 6.—A decline averaging a point occurred in the stock market today merely on technical conditions, there being no news of an unfavorable character. Many traders who were bearish yesterday bought stocks on today's decline.

Steel mills of the country gained in output during the past week after having hit the low point the week before, according to today's review by The Iron Age, which says that, after dropping below 50 per cent of production, the industry is now aiming to get back to 60 per cent. So far, the improvement has not been large, it is stated, but promises to be greater. Steel companies are short of box cars for moving products. So far this month, nine furnaces have been brought back, five in Pennsylvania, including three in the Pittsburg district, three at Youngstown and one at Cleveland.

Iron output for August is given at 1,816,170 tons, or an average per day of 58,786, against 2,405,365, or a daily average of 77,592, for July.

Orders just booked for new locomotives total 238, including 100 from Pennsylvania and 50 each from Chicago Northwestern and Missouri Pacific. Inquiries for new freight cars total 5,000, and for repairs to cars between 1,500 and 2,000.

Minneapolis private wires reported today that at the local office there of the St. Paul railroad applications had been received yesterday for 150 shopmen's jobs, only 45 men being taken on—the most efficient.

Analyzing the oil situation and outlook in Mexico in the current number of The Lamp the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, says that only part of the $500,000,000 investment "which the operating companies as a whole have made in Mexico will be returned to them" because of the virtual exhaustion of some of the most important producing fields following salt water invasion.

Overproduction Feared.

The understanding here is that this company alone is figuring on wiping off a loss of between $23,000,000 and $25,000,000 as a result of its venture into the Mexican oil fields. However, Wall Street men interested in the production of crude oil in the United States for some time have been worried over overproduction in this country, which they say will be taken care of all right with the Mexican production curtailed.

Fisher Body's earnings for the three months ended July 31 show what the automobile companies in general are doing. This corporation, not including the returns from the Ohio company, earned for the three months after paying interest and government taxes $1,733,000 against $1,212,000 for the same period of last year and $2,221,000 for the same months of 1920. This amounts for the period covered to $3.55 a share for the common stock after allowing for the preferred dividend against $2.30 for the same months of 1921.

Crucible Mystery.

Wall street loves a mystery and consequently traders are wondering why Crucible "rights" to subscribe to 50,000 shares of new stock at par at the rate of one new share for each fifteen now owned should be worth $1 when the open market price of the outstanding shares was below par.

One banker offered the explanation that insiders had agreed to take all of the new stock not subscribed for by other shareholders and then put up the price. In that event the "rights" would be a call on the stock which could be sold at a profit when the price crossed par. Crucible which is closely held sold last year as high as 107 1-4 and in 1920, before the 50 per cent stock dividend, as high as 278 1-8 In 1919 the range was between 52 and 261.

Stromberg Carburetor is another stock that is attracting attention by its strength. Those familiar with this company's affairs are telling their friends that the stock owned by Allan A. Ryan has been taken over by insiders, that orders held on the books are sufficient to keep the plant running at full capacity for the rest of this year, that earnings are running at the rate of $9 a year for the stock, that dividends will be resumed at the rate of $3 a year.

Railroad officials here estimate that for the last five months of this year the class 1 railroads will earn net operating income of $480,000,000 which with the $420,000,000 earned for the first seven months will make $900,000,000 for the year against $615,000,000 for 1921, or the best year since 1917. This will be equal to 5 per cent on the $18,000,000 total property account which does not take into account "other income," a considerable item in figuring dividend prospects.

Speculative Sales Cause General Securities Decline

New York, September 6.—Speculative selling, induced by the belief that a reaction was due on technical groups caused a general recession in prices in today's stock market, losses of one to nearly 3 points being numerous.

There was little outside news that had a direct market bearing, although publication of an article in an organ of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey indicated huge investment losses of American companies operating in Mexico, caused active selling of Mexican Oil shares, which were forced down large fractions to 4 points.

As prices in the market have showed an increase for nine successive weeks, it is a sort of tradition in Wall street that no speculative movement can proceed far in either direction without a temporary interruption and professional interests apparently felt that the time was ripe to call a halt to the upward trend.

Mexican Petroleum closed at a net loss of 4 1-4, but dealings were extensive. The shares of the parent Pan-American company were forced down 1 to 2 points, while most of the domestic issues showed similar losses.

Weakness of shipping shares probably was accentuated by the recent cut in passenger rates, Marine preferred dropping 1 5-8, American International 1 1-8 and Atlantic Gulf 1 1-2; Equipment shares slumped after an early display of strength.

Railroad shares failed to respond to the more favorable overnight news, showing increased car loading and a steady increase in the number of new shop workers engaged to replace strikers.

Steels also were reactionary, despite reports of increased production in weekly trade reviews. United States Steel common sold off over a point, with slightly small losses in Crucible, Republican, Midvale and Bethlehem. Gulf Steel reacted more than 3 points.

Total sales were 976,000 shares.

Call money opened and renewed at 4 1-2 per cent, but eased off to 4 in the first hour and held at that figure until the close. Time money and commercial paper rates continued firm.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, demand declining fractionally on a large offering of commercial bills. French francs rallied, but eased off slightly at the close. German marks improved slightly. The weekly statement of the Reichsbank showed an increase in the circulation of 23,000,000,000 marks, the largest increase to date.

New York, September 6.—Continued hedge selling connected with an idea that the market will not be able to absorb early new crop receipts at prevailing prices, was considered responsible for a further sharp decline in the cotton market today. After selling off to 21.10 at the start, December rallied to 21.50, but broke to 20.75 in the late trading or 55 points net lower and 230 points below the high price of Friday morning. That delivery closed at 20.85 with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 40 to 55 points.

The market opened barely steady, 11 to 20 points lower in response to easy cables and overnight selling orders which were supposed to include further hedge selling from South Georgia and Texas points. There was a good deal of covering around the initial prices which became a little more active after the publication of a bullish weekly weather report and the market worked about 4 to 12 points net higher late in the afternoon with October selling up to 21.91 and January to 21.27. Some trade buying was also reported on this advance but the volume of business tapered off above yesterday's closing quotations and the market broke again during the middle of the afternoon on renewed southern selling which appeared to encourage rather more aggressive offerings from Wall Street and other sources. October broke to 20.53 and January to 20.60 making net declines of about 50 to 57 points on the general list and reactions of about 230 to 240 points from recent high prices. Private cables attributed the declines in Liverpool to the weakness of American markets. The continued dry weather reported in the south was accompanied by reports of further deterioration in the southwest but was regarded very favorable for picking.

Port recepts today 17,085; U. S. port stocks 392,361. Exports 2,724 making 249,056 so far this season.

HEDGE SELLING CAUSES NEW ORLEANS DECLINE

New Orleans, September 6.—Hedge selling stood out as the most prominent influence in the cotton market today and it caused wide declines. More or less liquidation came on the market from the long side and increased the pressure against values while at no stage of the session was any very effective support forthcoming. Following the reading of the government's weekly crop reports the strongest rally of the day occurred, carrying prices 10 to 20 points higher than the close of yesterday to 20.62 for October. In the late trading prices were 44 to 56 points under the close of yesterday with October off to 19.88. The close was 35 to 42 points net lower on the day with October at 20.05.

The day started off with offerings rather liberal and declines of 11 to 14 points were made in the early trading but the market steadied when the weekly crop reports were issued for they were regarded as highly unfavorable and as indicating further deterioration of the crop in practically all sections of the belt. By the middle of the morning the effect of these reports had worn off and after that the undertone was soft.

Many brokers held the theory that those interests who had hedge sales to make had waited all day for a sustained hard spot and, disappointed, in the late trading put these contracts out all at once. Heaviest selling came in the last few minutes of the day.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letter.

Today's reaction seemed the product of a somewhat impaired technical position and professional selling.

Offerings were well taken, however, and prices rallied quite easily in many cases but notably in Consolidated Gas, which made a new high.

The basis of the market recently has been investment rather than speculative buying and while occasional set backs would be natural, we doubt if they are likely to assume dangerous proportions at this particular stage.—Doremus, Daniel & Co.

Cotton Letter.

Liverpool about 2 points lower than due to the weakness in market yesterday was due almost entirely to the selling of hedges by south.

There was also considerable liquidation. It appears as if Texas is willing to accept the prevailing price and is selling considerable in this market.

As soon as pressure is relieved we expect a very sharp rally and are still firm in our opinion that eventually market will sell considerably higher.

Cotton Letter.

New York, September 6.—The day has been cruel, cruel to those who pinned their faith to the long side. However, nothing in this world can last, and time, remorseless time, changes all things. In spite of the most strenuous efforts the south, our Dixieland, has ever made to raise a crop, nature has decreed that it shall be a short one. The man who sells cotton at this price will soon, sooner perhaps than he knows, realize that he is walking slowly through the slaughter house into an open grave.—Schap & Co.

Cotton Letter.

New York, September 6.—Our market opened easy and there was a noticeable amount of hedge selling for Liverpool and Japanese interests. The market after the call looked as if it would revive on short covering. December going to 21.40 shortly after the noon hour. Wall street sold heavily, forcing prices to a new low. This reaction, we feel, will not go much further and we are looking for a rally from these prices.—Hubbard Bros. & Co.

Today's cotton market was somewhat like yesterday's in so far as further hedge selling came in to rather an important extent early in the day, but most of the sales were made in liquidation of long contracts by disappointed buyers.

The afternoon break was caused by selling orders thought to have originated mainly among local people. Reports of further crop deterioration are coming in and today's weekly weather report indicates a further falling off in the expectancy of the yield. Marketing conditions, however, are having more effect upon prices than crop reports. It is said that resistance to the decline is being met in some sections of the south, yet the Texas basis is reported today 25 points cheaper than yesterday.

The undercurrent of feeling favorable to prices remains strong and some are firm in their recommendations of purchases at current levels. Our view remains the same that as good demand develops, it will be registered by a sharp rise in quotations. October Liverpool due Thursday, 11.75.—Orvis Bros. & Co.

MOVIES

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At the Grand).

The new show which opens the last half of the week at Loew's Grand theatre is a happy combination of vaudeville and motion picture features. The Spencer sisters and Wilbur is, perhaps, the most pretentious act on the program, being a series of versatile capers called "Home Brews." Songs, comedy, dancing, jumping and novelty bits are introduced, the two Spencer sisters taking a prominent part in the entertainment. Edgar Bixley and Ben Lerner are two clever boys with an offering of humorous character nonsense that promises to be one of the bright spots on the bill. Comedy sayings, songs and a burlesque on opera embraces their method of amusing. The balance of the bill includes Nelson, Walk and Company in a one-act playlet, "The Mysterious Will," Jean Perry, the impersonator, and Burns and Larkin in eccentric comedy gymnastics.

"Stop Thief!"

(At the Forsyth.)

"Stop Thief" with its many funny situations, which is caused by a kleptomaniac trying to evade the consequences of his absent minded depredations, is certainly living up to all the advance press notices and has pleased audiences at every performance this week. The plot is ingenious and all the comedy is good, clean fun, and the Forsyth players are doing themselves proud in the manner in which this play is being handled.

Next week "Branded," which had such a successful run at the Fulton theatre (New York), will be offered.

"Her Gilded Cage."

(At the Howard.)

In the new Sam Wood production, "Her Gilded Cage" now at the Howard theater Miss Gloria Swanson emerges, for a few episodes, from the conventional fashion creations which have caused her to become known as the fashion model of the screen, and appears in some pretty theatrical and dancing costumes which accentuate her beauty and lend her a fascination not before revealed. The star displays exceptional talent as a dancer and entertainer. The settings and costumes, the cast, including David Powell, Harrison Ford, Anne Cornwall, Walter Hiers and Charles Stevenson.

"The Man Unconquerable."

(At the Rialto.)

In "The Man Unconquerable," which is being featured this week at the Rialto theater, Mr. Holt has the role of a wealthy city man who inherits a pearling concession in the south Pacific and goes there to straighten out a tangle. Result—he wins the love of a French girl (played by Sylvia Breamer); bests a couple of villains and brings success out of failure.

Miss Edith Mae Patterson, national beauty contest winner, appears in person daily at 3:30, 5:15, 7:45 and 9:30 o'clock, wearing a new gown each day from Muse's new women's department. Is Your Business Sick?

When sickness overtakes you, you call the doctor. If in legal trouble, you go to the lawyer.

But when your business gets sick, the inclination is too often to let it rock along and recover of itself. Sometimes it may do it, and again it may lead to bankruptcy.

There is but one safe thing for a weak or ailing business: Call the expert accountant. He will diagnose the trouble and set it on the road to recovery. Try it.

STEPHENS LEADING IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., September 6.—Hubert D. Stephens, former member of congress from the second Mississippi district, tonight was maintaining a lead of between 8,000 and 9,000 votes over former United States Senator James K. Vardaman, on the face of unofficial returns accounting for more than 175,000 of the votes cast in yesterday's state-wide democratic primary to select a successor to Senator John Sharp Williams, who will retire from office on March 4 next.

Friends of Mr. Stephens have accepted the returns as conclusive of victory and tonight are arranging a demonstration, state-wide in scope, to be held in celebration at a public park here Friday night. No announcement has come from Vardaman headquarters other than a declaration by Judge Luther M. Burch, who took a leading part in directing the Vardaman campaigning, declining to concede defeat and indicating that the official count might be necessary to determine the issue.

It was pointed out at Vardaman headquarters that rural districts in the hill sections of the state, which returns must come by messenger, are Vardaman strongholds, and these districts were looked to to increase the total now credited to him.
